EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

We calmly await Cleveland's letter of declination.

WEST VIRGINIA with her six electoral votes will move into the Republican ranks this year.

ENGINEER MELVILLE of the Jeanette expedition wants to go on another expedition to the Polar regions.

BOLTING voters who are disgusted with Cleveland might unite their strength in favor of Mrs. Belva Lockwood.

THE tariff question seems to be acting on the Southern oligarchy like the genial sun on a lingering snow-bank.

If the judicial conference desire their candidate to be elected by at least 500 majority, A. O. Furst, Esq., must be the man.

NEXT March Cleveland will take Maria and little Grover by the hand and lead them off to Washington to see Blaine inaugurated.

If the Democrats extract any comfort from the result in Vermont, they will have to do it with a pair of ice tongs. It is very frigid.

HENDRICKS hints that it would be well for Cleveland to withdraw and put him (Hendricks) at the head of the ticket. How nice that would be!

THE Iowa Democrats declared for free whiskey. How would "Free trade, free whiskey and free love" do for the Democratic battle cry this year?

AN exchange says there is no bolt in the Democratic party. They may have a new name for it, but next November they will think it was a thunderbolt.

PROFESSOR PERRY, of Williams' College, and Speaker Carlisle both assert that Cleveland holds free trade sentiments precisely like those of Morrison, Watterson and Hurd.

GLADSTONE at last has his eyes open and the Mahdi, for the first time, is thinking about a basis of reconciliation. Sir Garnet Wolseley at the head of 15,000 men means business.

DURING the last ten years of Democratic rule there were nine defaulters whose stealings amounted to $2,132,392. There were also innumerable smaller defalcations. Keep the rascals out!

BLAINE was nominated by the farmer states and the rural districts; Cleveland by the city states and through the support of the city rings and machines. This tells the whole story of the influences behind the two men and the controlling force in their canvasses.

Look at the Result.

The Democratic party are now reaping the legitimate fruit of their own folly. Before the last National Congress convinced every possible effort was put forth by the Republicans to prevent any tariff agitation. Democrats were told that such a tampering with an interest so vital to business prosperity would be disastrous in its effects and sensible men concluded that the Democratic party would be sufficiently discreet to heed the warning.

But in this the wisest of men were incorrect. They discovered to their chagrin and disappointment that they had underestimated the extent to which Democratic folly was capable. The first step which rendered an attempt at tariff legislation possible was the election of Carlisle, of Kentucky, for speaker. But even then the reputed good sense of that gentleman was quoted as assurance that nothing imprudent would be done. The people, meanwhile, awaited with fear and trembling. The Southern blood and Kentucky ardor which courses through the veins of the Speaker controlled his actions, and the next revolutionary movement heard of was the Morrison Horizontal Tariff bill.

The business and wealth of the United States are now greater than that of any other country and at the mere mention of an arowed free trader attempting a change in the tariff which involved a reduction of 20 per cent. the pulse of trade throbbled mightily from the strong Atlantic to the peaceful Pacific, and from the broad bosoms of the great lakes to the Gulf coast. Wall street was shaken to its centre and only a conservative, strong financial policy—the product and outgrowth of Republicanism—averted a repetition of the panic of 1872.

We need not repeat the history which is of such recent date. With the aid of a few Democrats, the bill which sought to kill such vast interests was itself killed, and we hope that it will know no resurrection.

But it partially accomplished its evil purpose. Like a sun stroke which does not kill but prostrates, it paralyzed many avenues of trade, and temporarily checked vast business investments. As a consequence, the demand for the products of various manufacturing suddenly ceased. No states suffered more than Pennsylvania and Ohio, in each of which the previous triumphs of Democracy had included not only a stronger old on the reins of National government but also drew the State governments under full control.

One of the natural outcomes of this state of affairs was a riot which occurred among the miners in the coal regions of Ohio. But for this check to legitimate enterprise the demand for coal would now be much greater than it is and more work and better wages would be the result. But the work is done and at least a year of careful nursing and culture under favorable auspices will be necessary to restore trade to its normal status, and again create that demand for iron and coal upon which the prosperity of this community so greatly depends.

Do our Democratic friends see the result of the legislation which they permitted their hot-headed Southern leaders to attempt? Do they realize that the cry of Watterson for the triumph of free trade at the risk of the dismemberment of the Democratic party, means also the destruction of the nation's prosperity? Let us hope that they may realize this to some extent. But dare we believe that experience will lend them wisdom. We, for one, say that, in view of their previous deceit, they do not deserve confidence, and will never receive it again. A leopard can sooner change his spots or the Ethiopian his skin than Democracy entitle itself to confidence. Children are crying for bread and mothers bewailing their inability to feed their offspring because of the hasty action of Democracy. Angels may well look down at the sad scene and weep because such trust was betrayed. Perhaps Democracy was honorable once; but Satan, we are told, was once an angel in heaven; and the change in either case is about the same.

Let the victory won in Vermont on Tuesday be but an augury of the result in every Northern state. See to it that the National and State governments are reclaimed to Republicanism, and the brilliant achievements of the past two decades will be continued. The interests of our country and people will be guarded more carefully than ever, and prosperity will again spread its benignant wing over our land.

Death of Senator Anthony.

Henry B. Anthony, U. S. Senator from Rhode Island, breathed his last on Tuesday afternoon, the 21st, and in his death, says the Harrisburg Telegraph, there has passed away one of the most prominent figures of the greatest era this country has known; and to the lovers of liberty who toiled through the struggle with the Moloch of slavery, it is as the breaking of a link which binds the present with the glorious past. Senator Anthony's accession to the Senate in 1859 was one of the first demonstrations of the awakening of the spirit of freedom at the North, when it arose to say to slavery, "Thus far and no farther shalt thou go," and his continuance there without a break through four elections, was indicative of the unflinching determination of the great heart of the people that to that awakening there should be no relapse. In his personal and official life, Senator Anthony was emblematic of the spirit that ruled the national purpose. There were more brilliant men in the Senate, but none fuller of conviction of the righteousness of the cause, of faith in its ultimate success, or of resolution and courage in its maintenance. From the day he took his seat in the Senate, neither by word or deed did he ever flinch for a moment in maintaining the right, or consent to its compromise. When the days were darkest, when, to avoid the horrors of war or to attempt to shorten their term, temptation to yield some point of right assailed the statesman, Anthony never flinched; but straight before him was the glorious end, which should give us a country in which no slave could live, and in which the equality before the law of every man should be maintained because he was a man; and come war or peace, victory or defeat, no threat, no blandishment, could cause him to swerve. He has gone—this man, great in steadfast goodness and bravery; this man illustrative in all his life of the best, the truest, the grandest aspirations of his race and time, full of years and well-earned honors. Not to oblivion, for while the grateful hearts of a redeemed people turn thankfully to the heroes whose faithfulness wrought their redemption, Senator Anthony will not be forgotten.

SOME one has been figuring on the respective honesty of national administrations, with the following result: When Washington was President $2.22 on every $1,000 received and disbursed was lost or stolen; when Jefferson was President, $2.75; when Jackson was President, $7.52; when Van Buren was President, $11.71, and when Buchanan was President, $3.81 on $1,000, or $381 on $100,000 received and disbursed. That was the last of Democratic administration. Under President Arthur the amount of stealing or loss has been only 18 cents on the $1,000.

CLEVELAND vetoed about all the bills that came before him while he was Governor that favored the workmen. But then he didn't believe, at that time, that the Democrats would be so foolish as to nominate him for President and hence didn't think he would need their votes.

IRISHMEN love England so well they will vote in favor of free trade which England is so anxious to force on this country. Thus, they will aid England to exert the same supremacy over this country that she now exerts over lovely Ireland.

Hendricks' Queer Letter.

NEXT to General Hancock's tariff letter the epistle of Mr. Hendricks to a political admirer in Dubuque, in which he advances reasons why his colleague on the ticket, Mr. Cleveland, should not withdraw, is the oddest political document on record. The Democratic leaders have been very much disgusted over the publication of the letter, and the propriety of the second candidate on the ticket undertaking to write in such manner of the one holding the first place, may be judged of by the fact that leading Democratic papers pronounced it a forgery—or, if genuine, the worst blunder of the campaign.

Liberal interpreted the letter meant just about this: "The action of the Convention must stand, whether the ticket is in danger of defeat or not. The scandal is a very bad one, but whatever there may have been in it before, it ought not to be brought up in judgment against him now."

But even this free paraphrase is not a satisfactory explanation in the opinion of some Democrats. They profess to see much more than a blundering, half-hearted admission that Cleveland's moral character was likely to drag the ticket down. They even go so far as to suggest that some friends of Blaine may have a hidden hand in the stupid business.

The Chicago Times has undertaken to read this queer letter between the lines, and thinks it is quite clear that the writer, having lent himself to a feeble and ridiculous intrigue to capture the nomination for the first place, and having accepted the second, is still capable of nourishing the hope that the higher place was not even yet beyond his reach. The significant question is asked, "Why should Cleveland's colleague on the ticket answer a letter written by one who favored his withdrawal?"—Commercial Gazette.

HENDRICKS says that "Republicans admit that he was elected in 1876." Is it not about time that this lie was snubbed short? Notwithstanding the action of the electoral commission the vote of four Southern States were counted for Tilden which should have been counted for Hayes—North Carolina, Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia. If the elections in the South were conducted the way they are in the North there are seven Southern States which would be just as certain as Pennsylvania.

THE election of Cleveland would prove a National disgrace. We cannot conceive how a respectable man can vote for him. The thought of such a low criminal for President is revolting in the extreme. If he should be elected America can proclaim to the world that she is the home of corrupt morals. Even a Frenchman would shrink at the thought of such a ruler.

CLEVELAND is the friend and advocate of the worst sort of free trade. He wrote letters to Congressmen during the pendency of the Morrison Horizontal Tariff bill urging them to vote for it. That bill would have brought everlasting ruin to the country had it become a law. If Cleveland becomes President he will gladly approve a similar or even worse free trade bill.

WHEN a sensible Democrat chances to wake up suddenly and remembers that such a man as Grover Cleveland is the candidate of his party, he must feel like going out into "the voiceless silence of the night" and kicking himself silly.

It is our policy and the policy of the Republican party to rid our land of the inroads of cheap foreign labor. The Hungarian, Italian or Swede, who will not elevate himself to the status of an ordinary American, must go.

THE Granite State gave the Republican ticket an old-time majority on Tuesday, September 2.

NOTWITHSTANDING the rate at which Miles Walker walks toward the election for Sheriff he will still be several miles behind on election day. That excellent gentleman and worthy citizen, H. G. Royer, of Wolf's Store, is coming to town with a square, honest majority of about 500 at his back. It is quite fair that some others than Bellefonte citizens should have a few days' residence in the handsome jail mansion and be addressed by the proud title of sheriff. Democrats have imbibed the idea that only citizens of Bellefonte are worthy of this honor, but perhaps if our Penns Valley and Brush Valley friends teach them a point or two this fall they will learn different hereafter.

It is not a subject for surprise that the Democratic party does not regard decency of life as a necessary quality in a candidate for President when it is remembered that its party is supported in the Southern States by the shot gun, and that its leaders are the head and front of all immoralities, as for example, the Louisiana lotteries, which McEnery manages with the same skill as he does the politics of the State.

THE death, at his home in Geneva, New York, on Thursday afternoon, of Hon. Chas. J. Folger, Secretary of the Treasury, was a sudden and severe shock to his immediate family and to the country. Mr. Folger has fulfilled the duties of his high position with signal ability. He was loved and honored by his fellow-townsmen and all who knew him.

OHIO wool-growers are looking rather sharply after their interests. At their Convention on Wednesday they declared that they would only support tariff men, and all candidates for Congress must pledge themselves to vote for the wool rates of 1867. To make sure of the thing the wool-growers should vote for the Republican candidates.

BLAINE is in many respects superior to anyone ever nominated for President. He will receive the largest majority ever accorded any candidate for that office. It is safe to estimate his majority over Cleveland at 750,000, which if Democrats continue making mistakes, will be increased to almost 1,000,000.

THE favorite fiction that vine-growing countries have no drunkenness ought to get its end in the temperance agitation in Switzerland, where brandy drinking is on the increase and a poverty stricken country, with the area of Maryland and the population of Ohio, spends $30,000,000 a year on liquor.

MR. CLEVELAND read in some school book that the President is an executive officer, and he puts it in his letter of acceptance. The Democratic papers are so struck with the profundity of the thought that they are beside themselves with joy. "Hear him talk," they say. "He's no slouch."

THE London Pall Mall Gazette, discussing political affairs in this country, says: "In America ridicule does not kill." The Gazette bases its conclusion presumably upon the circumstance that Grover Cleveland survives the attempts of his friends to make him out a statesman.

DR. C. F. W. FISHER will make an unexceptionable associate judge. He is unable to engage in active practice now because of recent severe illness, but his fine mind and accurate judgment will make him useful on the bench.

THE reason for the Democratic attempt to explain away Cleveland's course on the Morrison tariff bill is not easily seen. In favoring that measure he simply stood where his party stood.

EVERY Irishman should vote for Blaine and Logan. Blaine will maintain the rights of America against all the world, especially against England, Ireland's oppressor.

GENERAL NOTES.

Atlanta, Ga., has 26 Methodist churches. There are 40,000 new voters in England. Six new Persian war vessels have just been launched.

There are 298 German officers domiciled at Weisbaden.

A mica mine has been opened in Orange Co., New Jersey.

A balloon that will carry 100 soldiers is a new invention.

Connecticut has been visited with frost every month this year.

The records of the Greely expedition fill three large chests.

A terrible drouth has depopulated a number of districts in Mexico.

The University of Tennessee has made Talmage a Doctor of Divinity.

There is a new town in Tom. Green's county, Texas, called Damsight.

Seven hundred skulls were found in a sand bank near Columbus, Ohio.

Seven hundred bushels of clams are consumed at West Brighton daily.

Popcorn is picnicked in the London Crystal Palace as "solid to the nobility."

Complaints are rife in all parts of England of the difficulty in selling real estate.

Springbok meat from South Africa has been successfully introduced into England.

The cost of the sanitary cordon along the Tyrolean frontier is estimated at $5,400 per day.

The jobbing trade of St. Paul increased from $67,900,000 in 1883 to $77,900,000 in 1884.

A cow suffering with pleuro-pneumonia was found in a Brooklyn milk dealer's herd and killed.

The wealthiest man in Oregon is living for fun in a log cabin which he used to inhabit from necessity.

Coal is cheaper in Boston, 254 miles from the coal fields, than it is in Philadelphia, only 90 miles distant.

In some of the Southern campmeetings signs are posted, "Drummers and politicians will not be welcomed."

Non-residents of Texas own one million cattle in that State, producing an annual revenue of $10,900,000.

When a Brazilian gentleman introduces a friend he always adds, "If he steals anything I am responsible for it."

The managers of the Cincinnati Exposition refuse to permit balloon ascensions to take place from their grounds.

An Arizona newspaper says "political, patent medicine and other immoral advertisements are charged double."

A law is actually under consideration in London to provide each policeman with a dog as a companion and assistant.

Pulque, the national drink of Mexico, bears a striking resemblance in odor and taste to wine, and is in color to milk.

Many Hindoo husbands in Bombay cut off their wives' noses by way of punishment. Five such cases occurred in one week.

Mrs. Langtry is said to be chillingly polite to her London friends, and charges that they have talked uncharitably about her.

Recent incendiary fires on a large scale in Austria are attributed to anarchists in revenge for the execution of the murderer Stenmacher.

An 18-year-old Bridgeport girl jumped from a second story window on Saturday night for the purpose of eloping with her lover, but broke her ankle in the fall.

Pretty little baskets for sending flowers by post are the latest English novelty. They are fastened with a padlock, of which the sender and recipient each have keys.

In the new town of Maiden, in Meagher (pronounced Mar) county, Montana, every child born so far has been a girl, except one. Montana needs women more than men.

Daniel Seldford found a ruby in Clay county, N. C. He sold it for $15. The purchaser sold it for $20,000, and it was next sold to a lapidary for $6,000. He cut it and polished it and sold it for $18,000.

A Parisian Marchioness is a nurse to cholera victims in a Marseilles hospital, in fulfillment of a vow made during the illness of one of her children. She is pretty and young, and dresses in calico.

There are more tourists in Ireland this year than ever before. There has also been an unusual influx of nobility and landowners who are rarely represented in the country except by their agents.

The son of the British Vice Consul at Rodosto was captured by brigands and held for a ransom. Troops were sent out from Constantinople, the brigands were captured and the captive surrendered.

A shoemaker in Utica, N. Y., has spent several years making a puppet show of about two hundred figures working at different trades. The whole are in two boxes, each 6 feet square, and it takes a steam engine to run them.

Forty years ago there was not a telegraph office in existence, and the telephone as a medium of communication was undreamed of. To-day there are 21,840 telegraph offices in various portions of the world, and they are constantly increasing.

A barber in St. Louis has advertised to keep his establishment open all night for the benefit of married men, who, after being around with the boys, can be sobered up with his Russian bath and enabled to return to his family in a condition to conduct family prayers after he has explained how busy he has been.

The Massachusetts Bureau of Statistics states that in 1878 the chance of a person being killed on or by steam cars was one in 5,005,281, while in 1882 it had diminished to one in 20,927,234. This is less than the chance of being struck by lightning, and much less than that of being injured by a defective lamp explosion.

Poetry.

THE BRIER ROSE.

I cling to the garden wall
Outside, where the grasses grow,
Where the tall weeds flaunt in the sun,
And the yellow mulleins blow.
The daisy and the thistle crowd
Close to my shrinking feet,
And the grey arrow shares
My cup and the food I eat.

The rude winds toss my hair,
The wild rains beat me down,
The wayward dust lies white,
And thick on my leafy crown.
I cannot keep my robes free
From wanton fingers' sweep,
And the veriest beggar dares
To stop and gaze at me.

Sometimes I climb and climb
To the top of the garden wall,
And I see not where I stand,
Stately and fair and tall—
My sister, the red, red Rose,
My sister, the royal one,
The fairest flower that blows,
Under the summer sun!

What wonder that she is fair?
What wonder that she is sweet?
The treasures of earth and air
Lie at her dainty feet:
The choicest fare is hers,
Her cup is brimmed with wine;
Rich are her emerald robes,
And her bed is soft and fine.

She need not lift her head
Even to sip the dew;
No rude touch makes her shrink
The whole long summer through.
Her servants do her will;
They come at her beck and call.
Oh, rare is life in my lady's towers
Inside of the garden wall!

A BAD SPELL.

You have heard of the City of Slou—
The loveliest ever you know—
And the following tale,
I am sure, cannot fail
To be read with emotion by you.

To this bustling town of Slou,
Came a son of Albion trix,
When the name was pronounced
In his hearing, he blushed,
And at once in a passion he flew.

"Now, tell me, O people of Slou,"
He shouted, "What can a man do?
As 'tis spelled, so we say it,
And that is the way it
Should be!" And he blustered and blew.

And all through the City of Slou,
That man raised a hubbub,
With maddest enraging,
Like tiger unchained,
And fell upon gentle and stout.

As over the City of Slou
He rushed, still the madder he grew,
Till he fell in a fit,
And his soul promptly it
Left his body—sans further ado.

Then the coroner's jury of Slou
Their verdict most solemnly drew,
"By disease of the heart,
Victim's life did depart."
You have heard the sad tale; I am through.

MY TEASE.

She teases me eternally:
Her smiling lips device
Most cruel things daily;
Yet in her liquid eyes
There dwells a spirit who laughingly
Doth whisper soft and low,
"She speaks in only chaffing;
She loves you well, I know."

She finds that she can carry me
To darkest regions;
By swearing she'll not marry me;
Still, it is sweetened pain;
For even while she's uttering
The words in earnest tone,
Her little hands come fluttering
To nestle in my own.

Our Story Teller.

Unfortunate Goodwood.

Mr. John Gamble, of No. 4 Montmorency terrace, had deceived his wife. When he told her that he had to leave town on important business, and would not be back until the next day, he really was going to Goodwood with a few jolly fellows, with whom he intended afterward to spend a bachelor evening. His wife was usually annoyed when important business called John away—which it invariably did about the time of the great race meetings—but on this occasion she did not seem to be particularly upset.

"And you'll not be able to be back to-night?" she asked.

"No, my dear," replied John.

"Can't you possibly manage it?" she inquired.

"No, my dear; it's impossible. But why do you ask?"

"Oh," said she, in a tone of regret, which he easily saw was only to hide her pleasure. "I don't like you sleeping away from home. If you could only get back I shouldn't mind how late it was; I would wait up for you."

"It would be no use," answered John. "I'm certain to be detained over night."

John Gamble and his wife had been married nearly twenty years, and, on the whole, they had led a very happy life. Recently, however, an event had occurred which seemed likely to disturb the domestic happiness of Mr. John Gamble. A young doctor, of handsome appearance and engaging manners, had come to reside at the other end of Montmorency terrace—at No. 17. In an evil moment John Gamble had called in young Dr. Skelton to attend to his wife, and he apparently made his presence exceptionally agreeable to her, for she ever afterward refused to consult any other physician. And yet he had not felt justified in remonstrating concerning it with Mrs. Gamble, but he had frequently pondered over it in private, and, without its being referred to by either of them, it was steadily making the relations between them less and less cordial.

As has been said, on the morning that John Gamble told his wife he should be unable to be at home that night, he noticed that she seemed rather pleased than otherwise by his announcement. Hitherto he had been accustomed on such occasions to pouting and dissatisfaction generally on her part; and although he had not altogether liked them, he disliked their absence now still more. Indeed, the change in her behavior was so complete and striking that it at once made considerable and most unpleasant impression on his mind. That unpleasant impression was not diminished by a circumstance which subsequently occurred. As the eldest boy was leaving for school Mrs. Gamble followed him to the hall door. While she was speaking to him John happened to pass through the hall. He noticed she was giving the child a letter. When she heard her husband's step she turned around hastily, and observing that he had seen what she had been doing, she became very red. He could not help connecting this fact with her previous behavior in some way or other with her acquaintance with Dr. Skelton, but he left without saying anything about it.

All the way to Goodwood, however, he continued to think of what he had noticed—much more of it than of the races he was going to see. John's jolly friends soon discovered that John himself was anything but jolly. He did his best to participate in their gaiety, but with little success. He pretended to take an interest in the races, but all the time his mind was full of the gloomy suspicions about his wife, which would, in spite of all he could do, obtrude themselves upon him. To get the better of them he bet heavily and drank copiously. At last the races were over, and John was heartily glad of it, for he had never spent a more miserable day in his existence. He returned with the others to town, and although all day his gloomy spirits and bad temper had made him little less than an intolerable nuisance to the rest of the company, they expected he would be himself once again at supper, since there was no place where, as a rule, John Gamble showed with so much advantage as at the table. But they were doomed to disappointment. When at length, late in the evening, he announced that, as he did not feel well, he thought he would return home at once, they were all greatly relieved. He accordingly left the supper room and drove to the railway station, reaching it just in time to catch the last train for home.

When the train arrived at the "beautiful and aristocratic suburb" where he resided it was midnight, and by the time John reached Montmorency terrace it was close upon one o'clock. When he came home to his own house he saw how just his suspicions were. Although it was long after his wife's usual time for retiring, the drawing-room on the first floor was lighted up. What could she be doing at that hour of the night? He felt sure that something must be wrong, and was walking forward to knock at the door, when it occurred to him that if he knocked he should let out of the house any person there might be in before he could effect entrance. To discover really what she was doing he must surprise her; but how was he to do that? He had no latch-key; even if he had, most probably the door was bolted on the inside. He tried the windows on the ground floor; they were all fastened. He felt fairly nonplussed. As a last recourse, he resolved to go to the back of the house, get over the garden wall and see if he could not gain admittance through some of the back windows.

He went to the back. The terrace, though not a very long one—there were only twenty houses in it—was all built on the same plan, and so, from the rear at least, it was very hard to distinguish the houses from each other. But, as John Gamble lived at number four, he was able to discover his house by counting the fourth from the end. Having in this way identified it, he scaled the garden wall. As it was only about five feet high he contrived to do this without much difficulty. Once over, he made his way through the garden to the back of the house. He began trying all the windows to see if any of them had been left unfastened. To his delight, the kitchen one was unlatched. He raised it cautiously. Scrambling upon the sill—the house had no basement story—he sat there for a moment wondering how, in his present somewhat unsteady condition, he could get in without letting the window drop or making any other disturbance, when he recollected that there was a table just below the window. He put in his foot and felt it. Considering himself now secure he slipped down upon it. As he did so the table went from beneath him, and he fell heavily and with a terrible clatter on the floor. The table had not been exactly underneath the window, and his weight coming upon it sideways had upturned it. Considerably shaken and confused by the fall, he arose, and listened to see if the noise had disturbed the inmates. Apparently it had not, for he could hear no footstep. To make sure that no one should leave the house before he got out of the kitchen, he hurriedly groped his way through the kitchen to the door, and through the door to the bottom of the stairs. The fall seemed to have increased the effect of the drink he had taken, for, in spite of all his efforts to go quietly and cautiously, at every step he collided against something or other. Getting upstairs gave him still more difficulty.

At length he reached the lobby of the first floor. He stole as noiselessly as possible to the drawing-room door, and listened earnestly if he could hear any sound within. There was none, but the room was still lighted. He felt now in an awkward position. He began to doubt if his suspicions were, after all, well founded. If they were, he would know how to act; but if as now seemed likely, they were not, how could he explain to his wife his present position and condition? While he stood hesitating what to do, the door of the drawing-room was suddenly flung violently open, and Dr. Skelton sprang upon him. Had John been prepared for such an encounter, he would probably have been more than a match for the doctor; but he was taken by surprise. Nevertheless, he made a strong resistance. He struggled fiercely and desperately; but couldn't for a moment hold his own. He felt the contest was going against him; but, just as he raised his voice for help, his antagonist lifted him bodily from the ground and threw him headlong down the stairs. He fell on the landing with terrible force, and at once became unconscious.

How long it was before he recovered consciousness John could not tell. When he did, however, he found himself lying half-stripped in bed, and covered with bruises and wounds. At first he could not comprehend how he came there. The shock of his fall had driven all the events of the night out of his head. He lay for a time wondering at his position and trying to remember what had happened, but in vain. At length through the haziness which still obscured his vision, he saw the face of Dr. Skelton bending over him. The sight of it brought back everything to his mind. He gazed on the man with leathing, and then, turning his eyes away, he thought with agony of his lost wife and the children she had disgraced. Dr. Skelton interrupted his thoughts.

"How do you feel now, Mr. Gamble?" he said, gently. "I am very sorry for what has occurred. Can I do anything for you?"

"You scoundrel!" said John, passionately. "How dare you come here? How dare you show your treacherous face here?"

"Now, now, that's really too bad," said the doctor, soothingly. "I may have been too hasty with you, but you were more to blame than I. But we'll not talk of that now. You're not so much injured as you think. It's more the shock you had than anything else that's troubling you."

"Shock, indeed!" cried John, glaring at the doctor. "Shock, indeed!"

The doctor, however, took no notice but tried once again to persuade the outraged husband to sip the draught. He pushed it rudely away.

"Take your infernal medicine away from me," he shouted. "Do you want to poison me?" Where's my wife?"

"She'll be here in a minute," answered the doctor. "Don't trouble yourself about her."

"I don't intend to," answered John, fiercely. "You can have her altogether, for all I care."

"Don't talk that way, man; you'll hurt her feelings."

"She has thought a great deal about my feelings, hasn't she? Oh, Mary, Mary," he then moaned, half unconscious apparently, of the doctor's presence.

"Poor fellow, your brain's wandering," said the doctor, in a kindly tone. "Do take some of this; it will do you a world of good."

"Take your poison away, I tell you!" shouted John. "Are you not satisfied with one crime? Are you not contented with robbing me of my happiness, but must also have my life?"

"Upon my soul, you'll provoke me," exclaimed Dr. Skelton, angrily. "You're the most unreasonable man I ever met. I bear a man wandering at midnight through my house. I naturally attack him, and because, when he's knocked down, he proves to be an acquaintance turned gentleman burglar, he thinks he's entitled to insult me. Why, man, what kind of treatment do you expect when you become a housebreaker?"

"Become a housebreaker!" repeated John, gazing at Dr. Skelton in bewilderment. "Your house! This is my house, isn't it? It is No. 4 Montmorency terrace?"

"No, it's my house; it's No. 17 Montmorency terrace."

John looked dazed and uncomfortable. He reflected a moment.

"It must be No. 4," he said. I remember I counted it. It is the fourth house from the end of the terrace."

"Ah! yes," replied Dr. Skelton, smiling, "but from the wrong end."

John remained silent for some time. At length the doctor said to him: "Mrs. Gamble will be, I'm afraid, very much annoyed and upset at your adventure. But I suppose I must go and tell her. It is, however, doubly unfortunate, as she took advantage of your absence to ask her mother over, and she is now at your house. But there it can't be helped. I will run and bring them both here."

"No, no, doctor," replied John, very humbly. "You needn't trouble. If you don't object, I'll stop here for the rest of the night."

Dumas and the Cholera.

The cholera panic in France recalls an incident of the elder Dumas in 1832. His servant rushed into his room one day, crying, "The cholera is in Paris! A man has just fallen dead with it in the Rue Chateaufort!" Dumas laughed, incredulous. "But it is perfectly true, monsieur!" said the scared domestic: "he is lying stark and stiff and as black as a negro, though they have rubbed him for more than an hour." "Humph! Perhaps they have rubbed him with a blacking-brush," retorted Dumas carelessly; but within a week he had the cholera himself, severely, and would probably have died had not the servant given him an overdose of ether by mistake. She gave him a glassful of water with a few drops of ether. Dumas swallowed it, lay unconscious for two hours, and then awoke, convalescent.

Short Temperance Talks.

BY MISS C. S. BURNETT.

No. 13—Juvenile work in the Sunday school.

In a previous article we said that home was the best place for temperance instruction. But we well know that neither temperance nor moral instruction will be given in many of our homes since they are but the hotbeds of impurity and vice. There are 3,000,000 children in our lands in homes where vice prevails. The Sunday school was designed to meet this very want. This, to-day, is the open door of promise. There are currents of influence going forth from the Sunday schools that in some way reach every home, touch every heart. If these currents of influence can be permeated through and through with gospel temperance truth the masses of our people will be reached and blessed. If the church will put into the Sunday schools more of her time, more of her money, more of Christian love and sympathy she will find her work for temperance and all other reforms more prosperous and in the end successful. It will scarcely be denied that temperance is a legitimate part of Sunday school work. Indeed, the school that takes no steps in this direction cannot say it is doing its whole duty by the children. On to the front in all reforms, should be the battle cry of every school. Out of the old ruts and make an aggressive attack upon the enemy.

Long enough have our Sunday schools looked quietly on while this enemy, strong drink, has entered their midst and borne off the most promising of their number. Every respectable drinker you meet will tell you he was once a member of the Sunday school, while seventenths of the inmates of the Ohio penitentiary there received more or less instruction. This ought not so to be. There is too much routine work in our schools and not enough life and vitality. Our teachers and officers are either careless or afraid to speak out boldly against this monster evil of our times. We plead for temperance teaching in our Sunday schools, because in temperance more than any other vice is keeping our children out of the church. Special instruction is needed where special temptation is liable to be met. Baptise the 6,000,000 Sabbath school pupils of our land in the faith that rejects the intoxicating cup and attempts the rescue of the imperiled and you have moved on to the final, the speedy overthrow of this evil. In every community if the Sunday school is not a leader in this work it should be a powerful ally.

You ask how this work can be done. First, interest the officers and teachers. The pastor and superintendent must lead. See that one Sabbath each quarter is set apart for this work. See that temperance papers adapted to their years are in the hands of every child. Make a free use of the beautiful tracts and cards now printed so cheap. Have a temperance pledge roll in every school headed by the teachers and officers for in these days a teacher who is not a total abstainer is unfit to have the charge of children. Of course all will not sign the pledge, but many will do so. Provide for frequent temperance concerts and entertainments. The children are always delighted with these and will in this way bear the subject presented in every possible form; in this way you also reach the parents more successfully than in any other way.

I know that all these methods are practicable and easy. Will you not try them yourself? Sisters, are we not neglecting this work that lies so near our doors? How many of us mention the subject to the classes we teach? Nearly every lesson gives an opportunity to say a word. In many instances this work must be done by us right here if it is done at all. Are all our unions looking after this department of work? I know how it is; there is so much to be done and so few to do it that this is allowed to pass uncared for, yet it is the easiest and most fruitful of all our means.

The door is open, sister, brother, enter it, but go in the fear of God and asking His blessing upon the work.

The brewers of Cedar Rapids have been manufacturing non-intoxicating beverages named "Magnus' Good Luck," "William's Reform," and "Mum." These several beverages were placed "on tap" in the town of Marion about ten days since. Soon after, it was noticed that a number of men acted as if they had proven these temperance drinks to be intoxicating, their unsteady gait and maudlin talk betraying them. A temperance man—long he has praised sung—went into Wiechman's "place"—they are no longer saloons—and called for a glass of "Good Luck," which was handed to him, and after drinking a little of it he passed out carrying the glass and its contents, to be used as evidence. By advice of the mayor he went before a justice and secured search warrants for two "places" where these drinks were sold. The warrants were given to the sheriff, who with his deputies, seized all they found that came within the scope of the warrants. On Saturday a week ago, "Good Luck," "Mum" and "Reform" came into court. Within the bar were arranged bottles with beaded bubbles winking, and kegs made respectable with government stamps! There they stood ready to be tried, and never blushed! But when examination began they frothed at the mouth, and at last foamed over. During the trial physicians testified to their baneful effects, and finally chemical analysis showed them up in their true character, which proved them to be in possession of a large quantity of alcohol. They were condemned by the court, seized by the sheriff and his assistants, carried off in great disgrace, and a writ served for their destruction. Iowa people having the will to prohibit are rapidly finding the way.—Temperance Exchange.

When he Heard the Medley.

Sometime since a concert was given in Bloomington by a combination composed of graduates in classical music, and old Jabez Youngspot attended it, in company with his nephew, whom he was visiting at the time. The first number was a cornet solo, and the player turned himself loose on a medley, ringing in "Yankee Doodle," "Little Brown Jug," "Old Dan Tucker," "Father Grimes," and many other familiar airs, in the course of his performance. The old farmer was considerably astonished, and could not restrain himself.

"Look, Jim," he cried. "That fellow beats anything I ever heard. Lord! how he does make that ar horn hum. Jewlikens! What d'ye reckon he'd do if he were sober?"

"Why, he's as sober as a door sill. He never drinks anything. What makes you think he is not sober?"

"Wall, by gum! If he's sober: why don't he stick to a tune when he tackles it? He don't get half through one thing afore he tackles another. Now hear him! He's jes makin' Rory O'More climb, but I'll bet ye a bay steer—thar! Hear He's jes raisin thunder with 'Swanee River,' an afore he gets half done, he'll light out on—thar! What did I tell ye? Hear him? Thar he goes on 'John Brown's Body.' He's as drunk as a fool. Now listen. I'll bet he'll be rattlin' off 'I Want Go Home Till Mornin'—I told ye would, an he did. Ye needn't tell me he's sober."

A Funny Story by a Senator.

Bill Arp in the Atlanta Constitution.

I heard Zeb Vance telling how he captured the vote of a backwood settlement in North Carolina when he first ran for Congress. He said he had never been in that settlement and didn't know the boys. He rode over the mountains and found about 60 sovereigns at a cross-road grocery, and he got down and hitched his horse and began to make their acquaintance and crack his jokes around and thought he was getting along pretty well with them, but he noticed an old man with shaggy eyebrows and big brass spectacles sitting on a chunk and marking in the sand with a stick. The old man didn't seem to pay any attention to Vance, and after a while Vance concluded that the old man was bellwether of the flock and that it was necessary to capture him, so he sidled up close to him and the old man got up and leaned forward on his stick and said solemnly: "This is Mr. Vance, I believe?" "Yes, sir," said Vance. "And you have come over here to see my boys about their votes, I believe?" "Yes, sir," said Vance; "that is my business."

"Well, sir; said the old man, 'afore you proceed with that business I would like to ax you a few questions.' 'Certainly, sir, certainly,' said Vance.

"What church most you belong to?" said the old man.

That was a sockdologer—Vance didn't belong to any church. He knew that religion and meeting was a big thing in the backwoods and controlled their politics, but he didn't know what their religion was, for North Carolina was powerfully spotted. But he squared himself for the responsibility and said he: "Well, now, my friend, I will tell you about that, for it is a fair question. Of course it is. Well, you see my grandfather came from Scotland, and you know that over in Scotland everybody is Presbyterian." Here he paused to note the effect, but saw no sign of sympathy with his grandpa.

"But my grandmother came from England and over there everybody belongs to the Episcopal Church." He paused again and the old man marked another mark in the sand and spit his tobacco away off.

"But my father was born in this country in a Methodist settlement and so he grew up a Methodist." Still no sign of approval from the old man, and so Vance took his last shot and said: "But my good old mother was a Baptist and it's my opinion that a man has got to go under water to go to heaven."

The old man walked up and taking him by the hand said: "Well, you are all right, Mr. Vance," and then turning to the crowd said: "Boys, he'll do and you may vote for him. I thought he looked like a Baptist." And the old man slowly drew a flask from his coat tail and handed it to Vance to seal his faith.

Two Great Changes.

The New York Independent, the greatest and most influential of all the religious papers of this country, has now abandoned the cause of Cleveland, and instead of the high praises with which it greeted his nomination, it now declares, in the light of later developments, that he is unfit and unworthy. No change has made a greater sensation in religious and political circles than this.

The German paper in St. Louis, formerly edited by Carl Schurz, and still partly owned by him, has hauled down the names of Cleveland and Hendricks, and declared for Blaine and Logan. On receipt of the first issue supporting Cleveland, 1,200 of its readers quit, and so rapid has been the falling off since, that recently the stockholders re-ordered a change to Blaine. This is indicative of the drift of German sentiment.

The wife of a wealthy Logansport, Ind., jeweler eloped twice in one week. She was probably practicing that golden rule: "If at first you don't succeed, try again."

"How to Take Care Of a Husband" is the subject of an editorial in an exchange. "How to Take Care Off a Husband" would be an equally important subject for discussion.

There is a married couple living in Rochester, N. Y., who are both deaf and dumb; but there are two mothers-in-law living with them, and so, after all, the family noise is kept up to about the average pitch.

A mother, noticing her little daughter wipe her mouth with her dress sleeve, asked her what her handkerchief was for. Said the little one: "It's to shake at the ladies in the street. That's what papa does with his."

"I never saw such a woman in all my life," said Bass; "you are never satisfied with anything." "People who knew the man I took for a husband," said Mrs. B. "think on the contrary that I am very easily satisfied."

Citizen, desirous to feel the pulse of the masses on the political issues, to bootblack artist—"Well, Johnnie, will Cleveland win?" Johnnie, contemptuously—"Cleveland! naw! Cleveland is fifth. Providence has a clear lead now."

The raid on the Mother Hubbard dress in the West is not at ribbed to the pelisse. The girls, it is officiously, stated, will seek redress. (This is a sort of full-dress paragraph, and we jabot in here simply to fill up. We didn't know whether to waist basque it or not.)

Reading the evening newspaper at the tea table often brings out the real tendencies of the family. "Hello," said Mr. Job Shuttle. "The Chinese have beaten the French." "What's the score?" eagerly cried the youthful baseball enthusiast of the Shuttle family.

The Fatted Calf.

From the Youth's Companion.

The danger of going too much into detail in talking about subjects with which one is not very familiar is exemplified in the story of an English town-bred curate, who had consented to do duty on Sunday for his friend, the rector of a country parish in the Midlands.

The subject of the morning sermon was the parable of the prodigal son; and, in the hope of impressing upon his hearers the joy which the patriarch felt on the return of his son, as instanced by his ordering the fatted calf to be killed, the young curate felt a pardonable pride in dwelling upon a subject which could not fail to be comprehensible to the dullest cowboy in the congregation.

"Remember," he said, "this was no ordinary calf which was to be killed; it was no common calf or beast suffering from murrain, no half-starved calf slowly awaiting death. No; it was not merely a fatted calf, but, becoming more impressive, 'it was the fatted calf which had been prized and loved by the family for many years.'"

A sea of wide eyes and gaping mouths arrested for a moment the eloquence of the fledgling parson, and in the next moment there was such a chuckling and grins and fluttering of old heads below as had not been witnessed, even in the memory of the sexton, for more than "many years."

Puss Finds her Match.

From the Hartford Journal.

Most of my readers are probably aware of the intense affection the majority of birds have for their young. I was a witness of an incident illustrative of this fact one morning lately. It seems a young robin, unable to fly, had accidentally fallen from the nest. A cat, watching for just such a chance, attempted to catch it, but the old birds flew around the feline and chattered with so much vehemence that her attention was for a moment attracted elsewhere. The young robin tumbled through the grass a short distance from its enemy, but was pounced upon again. The parent birds, seeing that talk was of no avail, proceeded to use their bills and claws with so much effect that the small bird was rescued, and, though badly wounded was returned to its nest. Puss showed the marks of the scrimmage for a day or two after.

Death of the Secretary of the Treasury.

GENEVA, N. Y., Sept. 4.—Secretary Folger died at his home in Geneva at 4:55 this afternoon. It was so sudden that time was not offered to summon his children to his bedside, and neither of them was there. The only persons present were Mrs. Horst, of Auburn, his deceased wife's sister, Mrs. Knapp and Law, associates of his family physician, Dr. A. B. Smith, and his colored servant, James. Dr. Smith and Captain J. S. Lewis had left him only a short time before his death. Dr. Henry Foster, of Clifton Springs sanitarium, who had been here two or three times as consulting physician, arrived on the 4:45 train and was conveyed to the Folger mansion by Dr. Smith. Mrs. Ernest of Buffalo, the secretary's sister, arrived by the same train. Just as these three entered the room the secretary breathed his last and all was over.

Secretary Folger's two daughters are in the Adirondacks, the elder being in very feeble health. His son, Captain Charles W. Folger, is at Alexandria, Va. The telegraph was not resorted to earlier as so sudden a termination of the father's malady was not apprehended. The secretary returned to Geneva for the last time Wednesday evening, the 20th ult. He called his family physician next morning. The doctor gives the following diagnosis of the case of his distinguished patient: Great feebleness of the heart's action; congestion of the middle lobe of the right lung, and capillary congestion of the bronchial tubes; torpor of the liver; albuminous discharge of urine, showing disease of the kidneys. The doctor was informed that the secretary had hemorrhage of the lungs three times of late.

Secretary Folger rode out daily up to and including the 29th ult., after which he kept his room, but did not wholly abandon office work. He continued to answer important letters and telegrams to yesterday, and seemed reluctant to give up. Yet he was by no means unconscious of his critical condition and trusted to his friend Captain Lewis and other directions of a confidential nature.

General gloom prevails among the people of Geneva over this sudden removal of their beloved townsman, men of all parties and of all conditions of life alike joining in expressions of sorrow. The remains will be interred in Geneva by the side of his wife, who died seven years ago. The day and hour of the funeral cannot be named at present.

Blaine Recruits in Illinois.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4.—At the Republican State Headquarters news has been received of the conversion of James Cavanaugh, a young Irishman of Rock Island, to Republicanism. He is an alderman of the Fifth Ward, having been twice elected by the Democrats, and his coming out for Blaine has caused a local sensation. He and the Hon. P. O'Mara are expected to take a good many Irish followers over to Blaine. A letter from Jackson County, says: "The indications are that the Republicans will gain more Germans than they will lose in the Twentieth District. In Duquoin, Henry Horn, a well-known wholesale liquor dealer, banker and coal operator, who has always been an ardent Democrat and contributor to the campaign funds, has announced his determination to support the Republican ticket. Mr. Horn has just returned from a business trip to England, and says everybody over there is for Cleveland, and on this account he has taken an opposite view. He is quite a leader among the Germans of Jackson County, and his conversion to Republicanism is regarded as of a good deal of importance."

A Mine Caves In.

WILKESBARRE, Sept. 5.—The Enterprise mine at Port Bowley, owned and operated by Andrew Langdon, of Buffalo, was this morning the scene of the most extensive cave-in that has occurred in this region for years, nearly one hundred acres of ground settling from four to six feet. The Lehigh Valley railroad tracks sank five feet, and traffic was stopped for some hours. The air in the mine was driven with the violence of an explosion and forced its way out of the shaft, almost totally wrecking the inside workings. The ground is covered with seams and cracks for several hundred feet, and five houses, belonging to miners in the employ of the company, are wrecked. It is feared the mine is ruined.

It is now full of gas and water from the river and an abandoned working near by is pouring through the fissures in the ground. The mules in the mines were taken out in safety. Five hundred persons are thrown out of employment. The owner of the mine was offered $300,000 last week for his interest in the coal left, but declined the offer.

A second fall took place at the Enterprise mine this evening. The cave-in now embraces fully two hundred and fifty acres extending from the Susquehanna river up a hill to the fan house of the mine, a distance of half a mile. The fall of rock this evening is thought to have been enormous. Six miners were killed. Even if the mine is not flooded out it will be at least one year before it can be put in working order again. It is difficult to estimate the loss but it will reach only $500,000.

Terrible Conflagration at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, September 7.—A great conflagration is raging here on the flats. The entire fire department is in service and telegrams have been sent to Akron, Youngstown, Painesville, Erie, Sandusky and Toledo for assistance. The origin of the fire is unknown. Incendiaries are suspected by some, but the most probable theory is that some sparks from a tug boat set fire early in the evening to a pile of shavings from which the flames spread until Wood's ferry and the extensive lumber yard was ablaze. The fire continued to spread, defying all the efforts of the firemen. The lumber yards of Potter, Boardman & Co., and C. G. King, and the Variety iron works were also consumed. At 10 o'clock the fire was threatening to become still more extensive. About ten acres of frame buildings and lumber yards were aflame at one time and large clouds of smoke thickly studded with blazing cinders were blown for miles by a changing wind, causing intense apprehension that the fire would be kindled in every direction and a large portion of the city be laid in waste.

The Color Line in a University.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Sept. 5.—Considerable excitement exists at the seat of the West Virginia University over a race question that is likely to assume a serious phase. The university has been used, so it is charged by three-fourths of the press of the state, by the Democrats as a political school. As a result the school, though having an abundance of teachers, paid by the state, has become almost a failure, the number of pupils falling off, at the close of the last term last year, to thirty-seven, when almost the entire senior class left. At the opening of the school yesterday a colored man, named Gabriel Holland, a law student of good abilities, applied for admission, but was informed by the president that as his was the first application by a colored man he would refer it to the Board of Regents, who, it is stated to-night, refused him admission, on the ground that the constitution of the state prohibits a colored man attending the school. Every member of the Board of Regents is a Democrat, as are all the tutors and professors but one.

Rioting at Brussels.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 7.—The clerics to the number of several thousand attempted to parade here to-day, amid the hissing and howling of dense crowds of lookers-on, who subsequently becoming more demonstrative blocked the procession and tore down banners. The gen'd arms and civil guard were called out, but their efforts were futile. Finally the clerics, finding themselves unable to advance, slowly dispersed. It is reported that three of the injured have died. There was considerable disorder in Antwerp in sympathy with an outbreak there.

Wedding Bells at Media.

MEDIA, Sept. 4.—The oldest daughter of Senator Thomas V. Cooper, Miss Ada S. Cooper, was married yesterday at Media, where her father has lived for thirty years, to William E. Dickson. It was an occasion that brought together all the old residents of Media and the vicinity and many from other parts of the State who by affiliations, political and otherwise, have come into friendly relations with the bride's father. The bridegroom, who is also a resident of Media, is a son of Dr. Dickson, the well known physician and writer on natural science.

An Empire Knocked Out.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 4.—The game between the Cincinnati Union and Wilmington Stars was brought to a close in the middle of the fourth inning when Empire Dutton was struck in the mouth by a foul ball and seriously injured. The score 5 to 3 in favor of the Cincinnati.

A Deadlock.

HUNTINGDON, Sept. 6.—The conference from this county returned from Harrisburg this morning, where they had gone to meet the conference from Franklin county to nominate a Republican candidate for State Senator. A number of ballots were taken, all resulting in three votes for O. B. Crum, of this county, and three for Theodore McGowan, of Franklin. The supporters of each candidate were positive in asserting that they would never yield to the other. It is at present, therefore, at dead-lock, which there are no apparent prospects of breaking. The conference adjourned, to meet at such time and place as the candidates may hereafter agree upon. The Huntingdon conference say that the next meeting will probably not be held until the Franklin county conference are willing to assent to Crum's nomination. This district having been represented during the last four years by Senator Stewart, of Franklin, Huntingdon county will not agree that his successor shall be taken from the same county.

A Hot Day at Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 5.—This has proved to be the hottest day of the season. There was an absence of the regular breezes, and many were of the opinion that they never suffered so much in any part of the world as they did upon this memorable day. The hotel-keepers are not the ones that are grumbling at the arrival of the unexpected hot wave. James Gordon Bennett and a gay party of ladies and gentlemen didn't mind the burning sun and rode to Southwick's Grove, where they again were the recipients of Mr. Bennett's hospitality. The entertainment was modestly termed a picnic, but it was deserving the title of an out-door banquet. About two hundred people were present. The Casino Band furnished the music.

A Venerable Traveler's Death.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Eugene Schuyler, United States minister to Greece, writes to the State Department, under date of August 6, as follows: "I have the honor to inform you of the death yesterday, at the age of 85 years, of Mrs. Fanny Hill, widow of the Rev. Dr. J. H. Hill, who died in 1882. Dr. and Mrs. Hill came to Athens in 1839 as missionaries of the American Episcopal Church, but they soon saw that attempts at proselytism were useless and unnecessary, and they devoted themselves to education. The school for girls which they then opened still exists and flourishes. For several years, by an arrangement with the Government, all the Greek school mistresses were trained there. Thanks to this school, female education in Greece was put upon its excellent basis."

Probably Insane Through Poisoning.

HILLSBORO, Ill., Sept. 6.—About two weeks ago John Bartlett, residing at Fillmore, fifteen miles South of here, bought a box of sardines for his daughter, who ate a portion and set the rest away. A few days ago she ate the remainder, and was taken violently sick. The doctor pronounced it a case of poisoning and administered remedies which apparently restored her to health, but her mind soon began to wander and she is now a raving maniac. Her mother, who attended her closely, exhibited the same symptoms a few days ago, and is now also insane. To-day application was made in the Probate Court to try both mother and daughter for insanity.

Narrow Escape of a Village.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Sept. 4.—A fire, which almost destroyed the little village of Johnson's Creek, twelve miles from this city, occurred last night, starting at 11 o'clock in the store of Harvey C. Hoag, among a pile of rags. The village having no fire apparatus, the flames spread rapidly, in spite of the exertions of large numbers of residents and surrounding farmers, and the store and its contents were soon destroyed, together with the residence of Dr. H. A. Milmot, adjoining. Several residences near by and five barns caught fire several times, as did the Taylor block, but all were saved. The burned store was the largest country store in the county. The loss is at least $25,000, upon which there is $12,000 insurance.

Judge Tourgee's Magazine.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Mr. H. W. B. Howard, secretary of "Our Continent Publishing Company," which controls "The Continent" magazine, said to-day that they were not decided as to their future policy, but they were not going to let the magazine go by the board. It may be sold or it may be continued by the present management.

Mr. E. C. Bridgman, of Frank Leslie's Publishing Company, said: "Negotiations are pending between the owners of 'The Continent' magazine and Mrs. Frank Leslie, but the matter is not settled. The whole fact of the matter is that Mrs. Leslie and 'The Continent' people have done nothing but talk; no action has been taken."

Killed by Melon Thieves.

IONIA, Mich., Sept. 7.—George Holland, of Evergreen, Montcalm county, was killed by melon thieves last night. He heard the robbers in the garden, and taking a shot gun chased them out. He shot at one and missed him. The intruder turned and, wrestling the gun from Holland, struck him over the head, killing him. There is no clue to the murder.

Sudden Loss of Reason.

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 6.—On Wednesday Miss McLean, a young milliner of this place, was sitting in a parlor in company with some friends when she suddenly became insane. Without warning of any kind reason left its throne and the combined efforts of those present were necessary to control her. Her shrieks and wild singing were heart-rending, and for several hours it was impossible to quiet her. The cause is said to be news received several days ago that a cousin to whom she was devotedly attached was brutally shot in Texas. He was to have visited Athens shortly. Her mind has constantly preyed upon this, and she has been unable to forget the tragedy even in her sleep.

Two Funerals.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 5.—President Arthur will come to this city to-morrow to attend the funeral of Senator Anthony. He will probably leave here direct for Geneva, N. Y., to attend the funeral of Secretary Folger. He returned the call of Admiral Sir John E. Commerell, on board the Northampton this morning.

GENEVA, N. Y., Sept. 5.—The funeral services over the remains of Secretary Folger will be held on Tuesday next at 2 p. m., at his late residence in Geneva.

Brief Telegrams.

SCRANTON, Pa., Sept. 7.—The Florence coal breaker at Pleasant Valley was totally destroyed by fire this afternoon. Loss about $70,000.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—There were one hundred and fifty-three deaths in this city to-day, the majority of which were directly the result of the intense heat.

SHENANDOAH, Sept. 4.—This afternoon the main line of the Lehigh Valley railroad sank about three feet. The "crack" is one hundred and fifty feet long and four feet in width. All traffic is suspended, delaying large excursion parties from Delano and Glen Onoko.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—The Altoona Times gives its readers a little new learning on an old subject, the "dog days," as follows: "The rising and setting of 'Sirius,' or the dog star with the sun, has been universally regarded as the cause of the excessive heat that prevails generally at this particular season. The ancients put great faith in this legend regarding the period of greatest heat in summer so named, because in the latitude of the Mediterranean this period nearly corresponds with that in which the dog star rose at the same time with the sun. To this junction all antiquity, and the later followers of judicial astrology, ascribed a malignant influence. During this interval it is a difficult matter to keep meat, vegetables and prepared food from spoiling, as many housewives have no doubt experienced to their sorrow. The poor dogs that are made to bear the infamy of the source of our discomfort are, perhaps, allied in some manner to the extreme heat of the interval, but they, as well as human beings, share alike the afflictions which at this season are common. Dogs are to-day supposed to be more susceptible to rabies than at any other time, although there is no perceptible difference between the present conditions of the sun and what it was before the season commenced."

—Proprietor Teller, of the Bush House, treated his friends to rich savory turtle soup Wednesday evening. Among those who honored the occasion with their presence were Proprietor McMillen, of the big up-town hotel and Mr. John Anderson, of restaurant fame. They were unanimous in the opinion that the soup was delicious, and testimony from such veteran caterers is of high value. We agree in this opinion. It suited our taste exactly and believe we could digest an entire turtle when real hungry, even without the other accessories which Mr. McM. seems to consider so necessary. In making turtle soup the Bush House cook is a rare success.

A Business Change.

Mr. John Bartruff is about to retire temporarily from the carriage manufacturing business and has disposed of his immense establishment to Mr. Samuel Bortoff, of Clearfield. The sale includes all the unfinished stock and fixtures and a lease of the building, for which he receives a good sum, in cash. The sale is a surprise to Mr. Bartruff's acquaintances and surprises even John, himself. But as he is already engaged in the lively business, which is quite remunerative, he will spend a year in rest and recreation and will then take future movements into consideration. A visit to the West is thought of during the temporary rest. Possession of the property will be given on October 1.

—A "Pen and Ink Business Chart" of some of the business places of Bellefonte, suspended in a frame in front of the Post Office, attracts attention for its perfection. It is almost as perfect as if done in a regular printing office.

At Work in the Pine Forests.

The following is from a letter written by a gentleman familiar with lumbering operations in this part of the State to the Philadelphia Record:

"The apprehension so frequently expressed by the newspapers of the seaboard cities that the great lumber region of the West Branch of the Susquehanna and its tributaries is about exhausted, or that it will be in a very brief period; that immense quantities of fine hemlock are being totally destroyed in order to supply the great tanneries with bark, etc., are not well grounded. Such apprehensions have frequently and continually been expressed for the last thirty years. The only reason for them was that the best pine timber was rapidly disappearing from the banks of the streams and their immediate proximity, but as it became necessary to go further from the water for timber, other means for conveying it to the streams were excogitated from the brains of the active lumbermen, and the supply was thus not only kept up but largely increased. Additional and greater facilities are now being afforded by the construction of a complete gridiron of railroads through all the mountain gorges where timber grows, principally by the Pennsylvania and Vanderbilt lines and the several New York extensions in the direction of Pittsburgh, and where these do not directly reach all the timber they afford facilities for the erection of lateral and temporary branches that will literally reach every valuable tree. The quantity thus supplied will be equal to what has been obtained heretofore, or thereabouts. The lumbering business, however, is being largely changed by these new facilities, and will no doubt be revolutionized in the near future. Instead of the lumber being taken to the sawmills to be manufactured, the sawmills are being taken to the growing timber. Portable mills that can be loaded on cars or wagons in a few hours are constructed and taken to a favorable locality, where they saw all the convenient timber and are then moved to another favorable position. These follow up the hemlock, felled for the sake of the bark, and also consume the yellow pine, oak, maple, cherry, walnut, beech and other timbers that are too heavy to be floated upon the waters. As railroad facilities are increased by the construction of additional lines and branches, the number of these mills will largely increase until almost if not altogether the entire manufacturing of timber will be done in the woods, and their products of every variety of manufactured lumber will be carried to the seaboard by railroads."

Excursions to the State Fair.

The Pennsylvania State fair was opened in Philadelphia on Monday last. In order to accommodate the people who desire to attend, the Pennsylvania railroad will offer special rates during its continuance. On September 11, 12, 13, 16, 17, and 18 the railroad company will issue tickets good for three days from date of issue for $9.97. This will include admission to the fair. On Monday, September 15, a special excursion train will be run from Altoona. The rate will be $7.60 and will include admission to the fair and also to the electrical exhibition. These tickets will be good for two days from date of issue.

Gen. Beaver Don't Want It.

A telegram in Thursday's papers says that Major Eberhart, of New Castle, wrote a letter to General Beaver congratulating him on the probability of his being made commissioner of pensions on Colonel Dudley's resignation. The General has replied, saying: "There is no foundation whatever for the newspaper reports in relation to a change in commissioner of pensions, so far as I am concerned. I could not afford to make the sacrifice involved in the acceptance of the place, even if the reports were true. I do not think it likely that I will be called upon to do so."

—The base ball game on Saturday afternoon between the Tyrone nine and the Association nine was quite an interesting contest, about one hundred persons assembling to witness it. At one time during the early part of the game the score stood 6 to 1 in favor of Tyrone, but by careful playing Bellefonte worked its way up to the score of 7 to 8. If the usual nine innings had been played Bellefonte would have been victorious, but the visitors had to leave the ground at the close of the 7th inning in order to catch the train which departed at 5 o'clock.

—To those who are anxious to know how the arrangements are progressing toward the establishment of that woolen manufactory in Bellefonte, we would remark that the principal projector in the enterprise is still confident that it will be carried through successfully and has not thought of such a thing as relinquishing the enterprise.

P. of H. Picnic.

We are requested to announce that the picnic of the Patrons of Husbandry will be held at the top of Nittany Mountain on Thursday, the 18th instant, at which time W. W. Downey, State Lecturer of West Virginia, will be present and deliver an address.

—The days are decreasing in length rapidly.

—Dr. L. U. Beach, who married his wife in Altoona on the 7th of April was tried in Hollidaysburg last week, and on Saturday was found guilty of murder in the first degree. Prisoner's counsel moved for an arrest of judgment and a new trial and October 1 was fixed as the time to hear arguments in reference to it.

Humor in the Stomach.

Much of the distress and sickness attributed to dyspepsia, chronic diarrhoea and other causes is occasioned by humor in the stomach. Several cases with all the characteristics of these complaints, have been cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Other cures effected by this medicine are so wonderful that the simplest statement of them affords the best proof that it combines rare curative agents, and when once used secures the confidence of the people.

Lines from Loveville.

LOVEVILLE, Sept. 4, 1884.

The farmers have commenced sowing grain.

Mr. David Gates has just completed a fine large cistern which will contain about one hundred barrels of water.

Mr. William Cole departed from Loveville Tuesday last to attend the Evangelical Lutheran Synod which is held somewhere in the vicinity of Johnstown. He will remain during the week.

We hear of a contest at the national game to take place some time in the near future between the Tyrone and the Marengo mines. It will be played at Marengo Station.

On Sunday last what is known as the Friends' Quarterly Meeting was held in Half Moon. The day being a very pleasant one, it was largely attended. Among the assemblage we noticed many from a distance.

Mr. James Blackburn, who went to Maryland from this place last Spring, returned on Tuesday, the 2d instant. He is looking somewhat bronzed and bearded, but healthy. He reports times quite flush in that part of the world.

We have often seen recorded instances of absent-mindedness, but what would you term it when a man of business puts forth the preposterous argument that there are only 30 days in August, and will not be convinced otherwise without consulting the calendar? We'll not tell this time, Bi—. Good gracious, we almost named you.

Messrs. Curtin G. Roop and Asberry G. Wilson left Loveville last Monday morning, the 1st inst., for Williamsport to attend school at Dickinson Seminary. As Mr. Roop went one year previous to this he is acquainted with the school. Mr. Wilson is a stranger there, but as he is endowed with a very clever disposition he will command the respect and friendship of all. We wish them success in their studies.

While conversing, last week, with a once prominent but now dissatisfied Democrat he called my attention to an article that appeared in a recent issue of the Watchman in which was given what purports to be the respective places of residence of the present Democratic nominees for county offices. The gentleman disputes the assertions and avers that the majority reside in Bellefonte, and desires me to request your opinion, Mr. Editor, as to their present places of residence, as proved by the payment of taxes.

We observe, this week, occupying a very conspicuous place on one of the main thoroughfares of Loveville, a spring wagon of peculiar construction and apparently ancient date. Its presence was the more noticeable because of the interesting history which attaches to it. It is the one in which the venerable William H. Harrison rode when in the vicinity of Chambersburg in 1846, on his Presidential campaign which ended in his elevation to that high office. The wagon is the property of Dr. Thomas VanTries, of Baileyville, this county, and is here undergoing repairs. The owner says that if the next President wishes to use it on his canvass it is at his service. Of course, Mr. Blaine is grateful for the offer.

Now, Mr. Editor, we will give you a few gathered during a recent sojourn in that place.

While passing up the main street we noticed that the public school building was being repaired and a commodious vestibule placed in front of it which will add greatly to the convenience of the room.

Continuing our way up street, we wondered why it is that such a thrifty and otherwise genteel looking town as this should have such horrible sidewalks as we there beheld. But then we didn't go to criticize, and as that is the only thing we saw out of order we will forbear.

Calling in the store of Mr. J. H. Griffin, we had a pleasant and sociable chat with that gentleman. Taking into consideration the interruptions in our conversation caused by customers calling in we at once concluded that Mr. J. H. is doing a good business notwithstanding the present business depression.

We also dropped in to see Mr. P. N. Borket, who has of late erected a store room, and is now Stormtown's tinsmith, undertaker and merchant. Under such an imposing array of titles it is not to be wondered at that he is a successful and enterprising gentleman.

The marble works under the direct supervision of their owner, Mr. C. W. Hunter, are prospering and turn out as good tombstones as any in the county. Persons wishing a set of stones will find it to their advantage to patronize Mr. Hunter.

We must not omit to mention that Dr. Tobin, who but lately came to Stormtown, is meeting with success, receiving quite a large practice. As

Dr. Tobin is the third M. D. residing in that place that dreadful avenger of mankind, disease, ought almost to be afraid to "tackle" the residents of the town.

Finally, we came to "Gray's Store," which is the foremost in the place and the only country store we know of that does a strictly cash business. Mr. W. S. Gray is building a dwelling house at the side of the store room, so that after its completion the entire building will be under one roof which will render it as convenient as can be desired.

But we guess we have tarried long enough with you, Stormtown. With wishes for your success we bid you adieu. We are yours respectfully,

WRS.

Campaign Wit.

An Alabama mule has kicked three men to death: There must be some big political liars in Alabama.

The earthquake made the land quake this summer, and the political earthquake will make Cleve-land quake next fall.

At a fancy dress ball in London a man went as his own gravestone. The dress however was not original. The Democratic party has been masquerading in the same costume for the past sixteen years.

Waterpumps are now advertised among the attractions at Frascini, near Mobile. They should be sent west to take the Prohibition stump for St. John.

In politics the editor and office seeker must be judged not by what they say, but by what they do. The Cincinnati Inquirer says it is a Democratic newspaper.

The alleged tin battle-axes to be carried by the boys in the torchlight parades are, after all, made of silver paper. The practical politicians are sure to get the "tin."

The news of United States Minister Lowell's illness reminds the Detroit Post of the remark of an old Vermont farmer: "I don't see no use," said he, "in Gov'ment sendin' ministers to England all the while; the lazy scamps don't preach half the time when they get there."

"Do trains for Boston leave this depot?" inquired a traveler of a man whom he found lounging on the platform at a country station. "Wall," responded the rustic, "I have lived here nigh on twenty years, and I haven't seen none of them take it with them."

A Louisville man has turned out some sort of an electrical invention by which a man can lie in bed and fish. There is no demand for such an invention, for anybody knows that a man who will fish can lie anywhere.

"Is man inferior to woman?" asks a correspondent. That depends altogether on whether it is a married man or a bachelor.

REST.

Weep not when I am dead, dear friend,
Sweetheart grieve not when I lie low;
Wipe off my clay your soft eyes bend;
Remember it was good to go.
When low you press the violet sod,
Whose purple tears entwine my breast,
Beloved think I sleep in God,
Remember such souls are blest.

The perfect silence will be dear,
How dear the chance of painless rest;
And on, beyond all pain or fear,
The perfect waking will be best.
How dim this distant day will seem,
How far the grief we suffer here!
This life the mirage of a dream,
Merged to morning calm and clear.

THE OLD CAMPAIGNER

Gaily the candidate
Seethed the bar,
Where thirsty citizens
Thronged from afar,
Singing, "In search of thee
Hither we come,
Candidate, candidate,
Set up the drum."

Hark 'tis the candidate
Calls them by name,
Up to the parapet
Swiftly they came
And still his song is heard,
All through the din—
"Thrice times its son me,
Se'mm muggin'!"

Medical

PURE IS THE ABSOLUTE
NECESSITY OF HEALTH. BLOOD

THE marvellous results of Hood's Sarsaparilla upon all humors and low conditions of the blood (as proven by the cures effected) prove it the best BLOOD MEDICINE. Such has been the success of this article at home and abroad, that nearly every family in the world has heard of it. It eradicates scrofula, vitalizes and enriches the blood, and thereby restoring the whole system. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla cures biliousness. A peculiar point in Hood's Sarsaparilla is that it builds up and strengthens the system, while it eradicates disease, and as nature's great assistant proves itself invaluable as a protection from diseases that originate in changes of the seasons, of climate and of life.

Nothing Wanting!

SPICES.—The best cook in the land cannot cook successfully without pure, fresh spices. These we have in every variety. Well-seasoned food adds to long life and happiness.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.

—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.

No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTION-ERY, ETC.

—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We have new Florida oranges (this fall's crop), fine Figs and Prunes, and a choice line of Canned Fruits and Preserves. Bear this in mind when preparing to Celebrate the merry holidays.

We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

We buy the Best Goods and sell at the Lowest Figures.

Call in and inspect our No. 1 goods. Then you will know where to purchase when your cupboard needs replenishing.

The Striking Miners

COLUMBUS, O., September 1.—Governor Hoadly and others who have been making an inspection of the mining situation in Hocking valley returned to this city to-night. The governor says the situation is perplexing and of a threatening character. He thinks with the men in their present temper that it will be sometime before the struggle is over unless the operators should determine to make some concession. He made a personal visit to the mines with the hope that the situation would prove to be such that there would be no necessity for sending troops. In this, however, he was disappointed.

At 10 o'clock this evening he honored the requisition of the sheriff for troops and sent three companies to the most critical points, being Longstreth, Snake Hollow and Sand Run. On the way to Columbus the governor had a request for two more companies at Longstreth, two at Murray City and two to guard the property of the Hocking Valley roads and bridges in the valley. He however, refused to send more troops to-night, but ordered several companies to be in readiness to go to-morrow afternoon should they be needed. At the two latter places named they feared an attack to-night.

In reply to demands of the sheriff for men he expressly stipulates that they shall be used only for the purpose of saving life and property. This is thought to indicate that they will not be allowed to remain as a mere guard for coal and railroad companies.

Butler's Tour.

DETROIT, September 1.—General Butler arrived here this afternoon and addressed a large meeting this evening. His presence caused much enthusiasm and his speech elicited round after round of applause. Tomorrow afternoon he will speak at Grand Rapids and at Muskegon in the evening. From Muskegon he will go to Chicago and deliver an address at lake front Wednesday evening. Leaving Chicago Thursday morning he will reach Minneapolis Friday, and deliver the address at the state fair of Minnesota in the afternoon, and on Saturday he will speak at Northfield. On Monday evening, September 8, he will speak at Des Moines, Iowa, Thursday, at Omaha, Nebraska, and Wednesday at Topeka, Kansas. Returning he will probably deliver addresses at various places along the route, reaching New York about September 15.

The President's Holiday at Newport.

NEWPORT, September 2.—Among the guests at the lunch tendered President Arthur to-day were: Attorney General and Mrs. Brewster, August Belmont and wife, James Gordon Bennett, Mrs. Henry Clews and N. M. Beckwith. The President will attend a fashionable wedding at Trinity Church and Mr. Bennett's domino party to-morrow and possibly go up the bay to see some trials to be made by vessels of the North Atlantic squadron which have been ordered thither. Admiral Luce entertained the officers of the English ship Northampton on board the flag ship Tennessee to-night. Nearly all the officers of the North Atlantic squadron were present. The President dined this evening with Mr. and Mrs. William Astor, of New York. He will probably leave town for Washington on Thursday or Friday.

Bradford Bankers in Trouble.

BRADFORD, Pa., September 3.—Considerable excitement has been occasioned by the arrest of H. R. Huff and Colonel J. A. Ege, of the banking firm of Huff & Ege, which failed in May last with liabilities amounting to $175,000, and no assets worth mentioning. The warrants for the arrest of Mr. Huff were issued on the information of D. S. Wilder, J. W. Beeson and the Olean Chemical Company. The complaint of Wilder was that Huff and Ege were guilty of false pretense and fraud in assuming solvency and accepting deposits when they knew themselves to be bankrupt. The charge of the Olean Chemical Company was embezzlement and fraud in the collecting of drafts which they failed to pay over. Bail was given.

The Blaine Libel Suit.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 3.—In the United States district court to-day Judge Woods overruled the demurrer filed by the defense in the Blaine-Sentinel suit. The attorneys for the defense appeared and announced that the Sentinel's answer would be ready to-morrow, and Blaine's counsel waived the formality of a ruling for the defense to answer. The Sentinel's counsel say it will not be possible for them to be ready for trial before November, for the reason that most of the witnesses live at a distance from Indianapolis, and a great deal of work will be required in taking depositions.

Dakota Wheat.

FARGO, September 2.—The wheat harvest in the Red River Valley is practically over, and with fair weather, this week will see two-thirds of the grain threshed or stacked. The farmers are simultaneously threshing from the stack and stacking to lessen the chances of future injury. The average yield is believed to be greater than that of last year.

Horses Flying Through the Air.

HURON, Dak., August 31.—Peculiarities of the recent tornado are coming in. Twelve miles northeast of Huron a man named Briggs had thirty-two head of cattle killed by being blown into the James River and drowned, or thrown on the ground and crushed. He had six horses killed in the same way. Eleven hundred bushels of threshed oats in his granary were all swept away. His wife is a well known butter maker for the Huron market. The last three months she and a servant packed all the butter they had made in crocks, and stored it in the cellar, several hundred pounds in all. When they saw the storm coming they went into the cellar and crouched in the northeast corner of it, the direction from which the tornado was coming. It carried away and destroyed the house, scooped up every crock of butter and carried it away and it cannot be found. The women were unhurt. William Felkey had two horses and a colt in his stable. The stable, horses, and colt are yet to be heard from. Myron Kinney had two harnessed horses at his stable. The horses were seen to go up in the air and to come down a long distance away. About two hours afterward they walked back home with all the harness off except the collar.

The Rev. George A. Gressey lives a mile from the business centre of Huron. The tornado that struck near here was in plain sight from his house, a mile distant. He says no wind was stirring outside of the storm belt, and there were no other clouds in the sky. At times two or three tornado clouds were in view. All had a spiral motion, and looked exactly like an ordinary tin funnel. The clouds gradually arose and fell, going southeasterly. While in sight there appeared to be a double funnel, the outer one black and the inner one white. When the lower end touched the ground everything in its track was destroyed.

Great Parade of the Sons of Toil.

NEW YORK, September 1.—Broadway was lined this morning, from City Hall to Fourteenth street, with people assembled to witness the labor parade. The first division of the parade was composed of printers, building trades' unions, and bricklayers' unions. The second division was made up of cigar makers and workmen from the furniture and clothing trades. The third division comprised butchers, coopers, and other trades' unions. The fourth division was made up of a number of workmen not attached to any organization, who had asked permission to join the procession.

For weeks the various trades' unions have been making untiring efforts to make the parade successful, and the labor has not been wasted. It was anticipated twenty thousand men would form in line. This number was reached, if not exceeded. Both those who paraded and the thousands of spectators were dressed in holiday attire. Each body of men in procession wore some distinctive badge, cap, apron, or other symbol of their trade, to give uniform appearance. Many trades gave illustrations of their occupation. Butchers intended to illustrate their trade by killing innumerable cattle as they went along the streets, but Henry Bergh, with a squad of police, interfered with that portion of the programme. At Printing House square the procession was reviewed by Patrick Ford, Henry George, John Swinton, Lewis F. Post and a number of others. After the procession had been dismissed the men attended a large number of picnics given in honor of the holiday.

Brief Telegrams.

JOHNSTOWN, N. Y., September 1.—Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton cast her first vote at the school election here to-day. Eighteen other ladies voted and a lady was elected trustee.

PHILADELPHIA, September 2.—A special to the Times from Scranton says the Corning mill, of the Consumers' powder company at Peckville, was blown to atoms to-day by an explosion. Lyman Kresney was killed.

ROME, September 1. The Pope has issued an Encyclical letter, which enjoins upon the faithful that prayers should be offered up against the cholera; also for the freedom of the Holy See and the prosperity of the church.

NEW YORK, September 2.—Benjamin F. Meade, a nephew of the late Gen. Meade, has been missing from his mother's residence, Brooklyn, since August 1. During his absence a fortune has been left him by the decease of an uncle.

BURLINGTON, September 3.—The house stands, republicans 122 democrats 17, Independents 2 and greenback 3. Hiram Atkins, chairman of the democratic state committee, says the republican majority is 20,000. The republican representatives are greater in number than in 1880.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 2.—The business session of the national assembly of the Knights of Labor to-day was brief and unimportant. The only business before the meeting was the reception of credentials and discussion of certain assemblies whose organization was not entirely entitled to representation.

PERTH, Sept. 2.—The train by which the King and Queen of Serbia expected to reach this city yesterday on their way to Wiesbaden, ran off the track. It is not known whether this was purely accidental or was designedly brought about. It has given rise to the report, at any rate, that there is a plot against the lives of the King and Queen. Their Majesties took a later train than they had at first intended and so escaped the accident.

Death of Senator Anthony.

PROVIDENCE, September 2.—Senator Henry B. Anthony died here at 1:45 p. m. He had been in his usual health this morning, but was attacked with vertigo after breakfast and sank rapidly.

Hon. Henry B. Anthony was born in 1815, and was for many years a conspicuous figure in American politics. He was Governor of Rhode Island in 1849-51, and took his seat in the United States Senate as one of Rhode Island's representatives March 5, 1859, having been re-elected five times. At the time of his death he was the oldest member of the Senate in continuous service. He had also been president of that body several times.

The funeral of Senator Anthony will be held on Saturday at noon.

INDIANAPOLIS, September 2.—Argument was had to-day in the United States district court, Judge Woods presiding, on the demurrer filed by the Sentinel company to the complaint of James G. Blaine charging libel. The attorneys for the defense contended, first, that the description of Blaine in the alleged libelous publication was not sufficiently specific, and might have referred to some other Blaine; second, that the publication was in the nature of an inquiry; third, that the article was not libelous in itself, and that Blaine, in order to recover, must sue for special damages. The attorneys for Blaine replied briefly, and Judge Woods took the matter under advisement. It is not known when a decision will be given.

20,000 Republican Majority.

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, September 2.—The indications are that Pingree will have less than 22,000 majority. One hundred and five towns give Pingree 12,109 majority. In 1880 they gave 14,599 republican majority.

So far as the returns have been received Stewart and Grant, republicans, are elected to congress in the First and Second district. Returns coming in slow.

The latest returns indicate a majority for Pringle of twenty thousand. The legislature stands 98 republican, 14 democrats, 1 greenback and 1 independent.

Robbed of $7,500.

LYNCHBURG, Va., September 2.—W. L. Painter, a leading merchant in Pulaski county, was robbed last evening of seven thousand five hundred dollars, five thousand dollars in bonds and the balance in money and checks. Mr. Painter was at dinner at the time the robbery was committed. He left the store without locking the safe, and during his absence the place was entered and the money and bonds carried off. The robbery is believed to have been committed by a gang of negro gamblers that infest the neighborhood.

Death From a Catfish's Horn.

ALTON, Ill., September 2.—While Miss Catharine Floss was dressing a catfish, six weeks ago, one of its horns pierced the palm of her hands. The pain increased steadily, and the hand swelled. Everything possible, was done for her relief, but without avail. Finally mortification set in, and last week a physician amputated her arm. This at first gave relief, but blood poisoning set in and she died yesterday.

A Seaside Hotel Burned.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., September 1.—The Hotel Newport, about two miles south of here, one of the finest hotels on the New Jersey coast, was burned at 2 o'clock this morning. All of one hundred and twenty-five guests escaped without injury. Some of the guests saved their baggage, while others lost everything. Adolph E. Dick, the proprietor, was badly bruised by a trunk falling on him.

Blowing Open a Postoffice Safe.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., August 31.—An Emporia, Kansas, dispatch to the Times says the safe of the Emporia Post Office was blown open about 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The burglars secured $1,000 worth of stamps, a small sum in cash and a large number of registered letters, value unknown. There is no clue to the robbers.

Protected by 500 Police.

WARSAW, August 31.—Five hundred select police have been sent here from St. Petersburg to protect the Czar during his stay here. The Czar will reach here September 6 and will remain until September 9th, when he will go to Skernievic. He will sojourn there until the 19th and then spend a short time hunting in Jurazof forests.

Polishing the Wrong End.

Many men daily polish their boots who never give a thought to the condition of their hair, except to harrow it occasionally with a brush and comb, or submit it to the paralyzing attentions of the average barber. What happens? Why, this: From neglect, mental anxiety, or any of a score of causes, the hair turns prematurely gray and begins to fall out. Parker's Hair Balsam will at once stop the latter process and restore the original color. An elegant dressing, free from grease.

"Two's company and three's a crowd" applies particularly to a newly-married man, his wife and wife's mother.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellow-men. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. A Sound Opinion.

New York Sun.

First Burglar—Bill, I guess we'd better make arrangements to crack that bank in Bugleville.

Second Burglar—But I thought we decided, six months ago, that it wouldn't be worth while to attempt the job.

First Burglar—Well, I've changed my mind. I'm pretty well satisfied now that there's money in it.

Second Burglar—Why, what have you heard about it? Got onto something new?

First Burglar—Yes; I've discovered that the cashier has been sick at home for over four months. They must have accumulated some surplus by this time.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. may 18 ly

It Scared Them Both.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

Modest youth and bashful maiden on the California street dummy after dark:

"Will you give me a kiss?"
"You can take one."
"I don't like to."
"Why did you ask, then?"
"You are so pretty."

Giggle; then a sudden collision. Modest youth kisses her left ear, and both are so scared for a minute they think they've got the cholera.

Skill vs. Ignorance.

As a perfect pharmaceutical preparation, we are told that Hood's Sarsaparilla surpasses any proprietary article upon the market. Even to our inexperienced eye we see positive indications of the truth of the foregoing. A glance at the article shows the scrupulous neatness and care with which the details of its manufacture and putting up must be conducted. These points are of importance in any business, but in the manipulations of remedies for the relief of human suffering they become of supreme importance, and only such medicines are worthy public confidence.

When Dusenbury gets blue over the importunities of his creditors, he always writes to the correspondence editor of his favorite paper to know the amount of the national debt in 1883. He says it is wonderfully soothing to read in cold type that it was $1,896,481,110. It makes him realize that he has company in his misery.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching; very distressing, particularly at night; seems as if pinworms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also, for tetter, itch, salt rheum, scald-head, erysipelas, barbers' itch, blotches, all scaly, crusty skin diseases. Box, by mail, 50 cents; 3 for $1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—Preserving time is here in all its glory.

—Grapes are ripening rapidly in the September sun.

—New boardwalks are being laid in all parts of the town.

—Jim Potter and his sag can make better time than Maud S. on a good road.

—A truth—that the Bellefonte hotels are superior to those in most other places.

—Substantial boardwalks are now laid almost the entire length of East Curtin street.

—A refreshment room will probably soon be added to the roller rink in this place.

—September being the first fall month, the leaves will soon begin falling to the ground.

—The placid face of Martha Washington looks from a frame on the wall of the Logan Hose hall.

—The trial of Dr. L. U. Beach for the murder of his wife on the 7th of April began in Altoona on Monday, the 1st.

—The Philadelphia, of the National League, will play base ball with the Williamsport club, in the latter city, on the 15th.

—With steam heat and electric light, the Episcopal church will be quite comfortable the approaching fall and winter.

—The telephone and electric light poles are much improved in appearance since receiving the recent applications of paint.

—An infant child of Mr. and Mrs. William Steele died on Friday, August 29, and was buried on Sunday afternoon, August 31.

—A base ball game between the Ironsides of Lancaster and Williamsports on Monday, the 1st, resulted in a score of 10 to 3 in favor of the Ironsides.

—Mickey Smith, the Ebensburg murderer, has not yet been captured. Here's a chance for some of the celebrated detectives in Centre county to make $1300.

—The roller rink attracts so many young folks nightly as to almost depopulate the other resorts in town. As the weather grows cooler it will become still more popular.

—Are you aware, Bellefonte merchants, that the first advertisement in a newspaper appeared in 1652. The man who inserted it died wealthy, receiving large returns for his investment in printers' ink?

—The Centre Baptist Sunday-school Association held its nineteenth annual convention in Huntingdon last week, several members of that faith from Milesburg and Eagleville being in attendance.

—A reward of $1300 is offered for the return of Mickey Smith, the murderer, to the Ebensburg jail, before 12 o'clock noon, September 23. As he has a wooden leg, skillful detectives should be able to capture him.

—Mlle. Rhea, an eminent French actress just arrived from Europe, presented the new play "Yvonne" on Monday evening, the 1st, in Williamsport, for the first time in this country. She was greeted by a large and fashionable audience.

—The Methodist Sunday-school of Port Matilda held a picnic on Saturday, August 30, in which three other Sunday-schools united. Speeches were made by A. J. Whitney, Esq., Mr. Wilbur Meminger, of Tyrone, and W. E. Hamer of Vale.

—Williams Fickes, news agent on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad, took a straw vote on the train on Monday, the 1st, between Lock Haven and Tyrone with the following result: Blaine 45, Cleveland 16, Butler 6, and St. John 3.—Altoona Tribune.

—The Ladies' Aid Society meeting at the home of Mrs. D. G. Bush, on Monday evening, the 1st, was an enjoyable one. The society inaugurated its fall and winter work at this meeting. It has been of valuable services to the Episcopal church in the past and it seems that its work is but just begun.

—Rev. Dr. Hopkins, of Williamsport, who is well known in Bellefonte, is mourning the death of his mother. The sad event occurred at Rock Point, Vt., on Wednesday, the 27th ult. Her name was Madame Meleisina Muller Hopkins. She was ninety years of age and has seven descendants actively engaged in the ministry of the Episcopal church.

—The Tyrone post-office was robbed on Saturday August 30, of stamps amounting in value to $312.50. This robbery, taken in connection with the big one in the Williamsport post-office about the same time, seems to indicate that post-office thieves are numerous hereabouts and Mr. Johnston and Wilbur may do well to look a "leedle out."

A Long Council Meeting.
It was past 8 o'clock Monday evening, Sept. 1, when a sufficient number of members of council to constitute a quorum met for the first time in a month, for the transaction of business. The members present were Messrs. L. L. Brown, H. K. Hicks, Ed. Brown, Jr., Bartley, Cedars, Shortridge and Clerk Mitchell. Of these L. L. Brown was chosen president pro tem.

After the minutes were read Mr. Brockerhoff made a verbal statement in regard to making a gutter near his properties on Bishop street. Because of the fact that a gutter at this place and also on the Linn street side of Howard Lingle's property and on Logan street in front of Mrs. Steele Parsons' property is not considered necessary, the order requesting said people to make such gutters is suspended.

Mr. Chas. Cook requested that the water be extended from Curtin street along Spring to his new property and the property of John Wagner on Beaver street. The cost of laying 2-inch black pipe is estimated at $101 of which sum they propose to pay $35 at once, and afterwards will pay an annual water tax of not less than $10; if this be not granted that they may be permitted to lay private pipe from the water connection at Gordon's stable. The petition was referred to the Water committee.

Mr. George Potter requested council to take some action in reference to the Undine Hose House on Bishop street the lease for the ground on which it stands having expired Aug. 25. The Fire and Police committee, to whom the matter had previously been referred, reported that they recommend its removal to a place to be selected.

The report of the Water committee included a communication from people on Bishop street in which they promise to pay $120 a year water taxes if the 1600 feet of pipe be laid as previously requested. Action on the subject was postponed.

The Market committee reported $16.60 receipts. The Nuisance committee had nothing to report.

On motion, the Water committee were authorized to appoint two competent persons who in connection with the clerk of council and at reasonable compensation shall adjust the water taxes on the basis of the registration recently made by Mr. Geo. B. Weaver.

There were many bills to sign and approve, and it was after 10 o'clock before council adjourned.

Pickpockets at a Picnic.
Our agricultural friends at Williams Grove, last week, were considerably bothered with the presence of pickpockets who relieved them of sundry valuables, although we have not heard that any one from this immediate vicinity suffered by their depredations. The Williamsport Sun and Banner says that within the past few days Samuel J. Anderson, chief of the Harrisburg detective bureau, who, by the way, is one of the most experienced and astute officers in the State, has received a number of postal cards from persons present, which stated they had been losers, and offering rewards for the return of articles. The last was on Saturday. The loser was a Marietta gentleman. The article taken was a gold watch and must have been an elegant one, as he offers a reward of $50 for its return and $25 for the conviction of the thief. The watch, he says, was called a Melrose, made by the Lancaster Watch Company, number 11,517, has a small English "W" on the dial lid close to the push spring, and is a stem-winder. During the picnic there were a number of detectives on the ground and many "crooks" were seen at work, especially when the people gathered for the trains or for water at the spring, yet no arrests were made by them because they had not been employed.

—On Saturday, August 30, says the Altoona Tribune, a hearing was held at Clearfield, in the application to continue an injunction issued at the instance of the Tyrone and Clearfield railway company against the Beech Creek, Clearfield and Southwestern railroad company to restrain the latter company from crossing at grade the Phillipsburg branch of the former corporation. It was contended that a crossing at grade would be dangerous, and that an overhead crossing was practicable and not more expensive. No decision has yet been announced. The Tyrone and Clearfield company was represented by Murray & Gordon, of Clearfield, and the Beech Creek road by Senator Peale, of Lock Haven. This is the first battle between these rival companies.

—The funeral of a grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Weaver of this place occurred on Monday, the 1st, at the home of its parents in Beech Creek, and several relatives from Bellefonte attended.

A Birthday Reunion.
SEPTEMBER 1, 1884.
Mr. Editor: A few days ago a delightful reunion of brothers, sisters, children and grandchildren was held at the residence of Mr. Henry N. Holter, in Liberty township. The occasion which drew this company together was the date of his wife's 59th birthday. In all there were about thirty persons present. As the larger portion of the family had not been informed of any unusual celebration of the day it proved to be an enjoyable surprise.

About noon-time the table was surrounded and its contents eagerly partaken of. The collation was rich, elegant and bounteous. The time spent in discussing these viands was enjoyed by all, and when at its close the children and friends each presented Mrs. Holter with a token of their affection, her heart was indeed made glad.

Mrs. Holter is a large, noble-looking lady. She is as large in heart as in person and her affection includes all who know her. Something like 260 lbs. is said to be her physical weight, but her goodness who shall measure? She will live I hope to enjoy many such pleasant reunions, and they should be repeated annually, for they benefit all who take part in them.

ONE WHO WAS THERE.

A Hotel Clerk's Departure.
A very interesting affair occurred at the New Brockerhoff House Tuesday evening, the 2nd. Mr. John U. Sharpe, the gentleman who has officiated in the capacity of clerk in that hotel for several years past and, as Mr. McMillen remarked, "the best hotel clerk who ever filled a similar position in Bellefonte," has severed his connection with the establishment and departed for Selinsgrove Wednesday evening. In view of this fact, a small party of his friends, principally attaches about the hotel, gathered to give him a parting testimonial of their esteem. A very nice little oyster supper was served, which of course was enjoyable, not only because of the interest attaching to the occasion, but also from the fact that the delicious bivalves have just returned to remain all winter. Mr. F. X. Lehman, proprietor of the Butts House, presented Mr. Sharpe with a cane and Mr. Burton, the competent chef, gave him a handsome cake which is indeed a credit to his skill. Mr. Sharpe will be succeeded by Mr. W. E. Adams, of Dayton, Ohio, who is a very pleasant gentleman and will doubtless be an excellent chief clerk.

The Morning Star.
Saturn is the morning star and just now outranks the other planets in the important materials he affords for study. Not only is he a beautiful object in the sky during almost the entire night, but he is also approaching the earth under favorable conditions seldom surpassed in his long career. On the 10th, at 10 o'clock in the morning, he is in quadrature with the sun on his western side. He is then ninety degrees distant from the sun, at what may be called the half-way house between conjunction and opposition and is in fine position for observation both with the naked eye and the telescope. He is also conveniently situated for this purpose, rising now at half past 11 o'clock in the evening, and at the end of the month, making his appearance at half-past 9 o'clock. He reigns alone for a while, but his short-lived supremacy soon ends, Venus appearing upon the scene and outshining her giant brother as well as all the lesser lights.

During this year and the next the finest telescopic views of Saturn and his rings may be obtained in northern latitudes.

The Sunflower.
How much handsomer sunflowers appear now than they did a few years ago! How much more numerous, too, they are cultivated! Their big, yellow, honest faces looking, like the eagle without a tremor, straight at the beaming sun, arouse our interest and admiration. When a young lady fastens one on the waist of her dress as an ornament it no more occasions even a remark, but is at once accepted as an evidence of good taste. So much for the cultivation of the aesthetic parts of our nature. These flowers also combine use with beauty. They are healthful and their seeds are utilized for some purposes. We would not regret to see them in every garden in Bellefonte. By the way, the revival of the sunflower is perhaps the chief fruit of Oscar Wilde's American labors and it is the only thing we can think of just now for which to thank him.

—Mr. James Harris will proceed at once to erect his proposed new brick building on High street. Mr. Jesse Stewart is the contractor and expects to have it under roof within two months if cold weather don't interrupt proceedings.

Millionaires in Johnstown.
The railroad magnates who visit all sections of the country in their splendid palace cars often meet with difficulties which ordinary people do not encounter. This was the way, says the Altoona Tribune, when a party of them arrived in Johnstown on Tuesday evening, the 2d. Great difficulty was experienced in getting the private cars of Messrs. Vanderbilt and Newell around the sharp curves necessary to be passed in order to get from the Somerset and Cambria line to the main stem of the Pennsylvania. The Newell car was finally yanked around the curves, the wheels squealing like unto a pig under a gate, but no special damage was done to the coach. When an effort was first made to get Mr. Vanderbilt's palace on wheels under the bridge it was thought to be impossible, owing to the great height of the car, but it was finally forced through, the body being pressed flat down on the springs, the roof badly scraped, the ventilators demoralized and the paint along the sides of the car much defaced.

—Mr. Andrew Brockerhoff met with a misfortune while at Snow Shoe on Tuesday of last week. The horse which he was driving was frightened by a board breaking under his feet and ran away. Mr. Brockerhoff was thrown from the buggy and one of his limbs considerably bruised, which causes him to walk with difficulty to-day. The horse ran on down a hill and the buggy was more or less damaged in the descent. The animal, we understand, was not injured at all. All things considered, it was quite a fortunate escape for Mr. Brockerhoff.

—The usual number of people thronged to the roller rink on Monday evening and the most noticeable event was the skating of Mr. Sol. Goldsmith. Once he rolled along in the most approved style on all fours. Exactly what part Proprietor McDougal and Miss Dawson took in aiding him to accomplish this feat is a subject for investigation. Mrs. James Lane was perhaps the most graceful among the lady skaters present on that occasion.

—The Tyrone correspondent of the Altoona Times complains because the United States didn't begin war with Spain in 1873 about the Alabama affair. But the same correspondent will bellow loudest in favor of sending Democrats to Congress for the purpose of obstructing all legislation that will enable the United States to equip a navy in preparation for such a war when necessary.

—The International Electrical Exhibition begins in Philadelphia to-day, to continue until October 11. The State Fair will begin in the same city on Monday, the 8th, and close on the 20th inst. During the progress of these dual exhibitions, September 8 to 20, excursion tickets will be sold from Altoona on September 11, 12, 13, 16, 17, and 18, good for three days, including date of issue.

—We regret to record the death of Mr. George Furst, of Beech Creek, which occurred on Monday, the 1st. He was a cousin of A. O. Furst, Esq., of this place, and a much respected and quite aged gentleman. He leaves a wife and a daughter to mourn his death. The funeral services were at 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon and the interment in Cedar Hill cemetery.

—Arrangements are again in progress at the Steel Works in this place to resume operations on Monday, the 15th, and it is expected that work will continue about three months. The principal change from former experiments will be in the use of Westmoreland coal which it is believed will be better than the coal used heretofore.

—The Greenback party of Blair county met in county convention in Hollidaysburg on Tuesday. Hon. Samuel Calvin, of Hollidaysburg, and John W. Otto, of Altoona, were chosen delegates to the State convention in this place on the 30th. Jackson Dasher, of Altoona, and William H. Quinn, of Tyrone, were selected as alternates.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company are worth $100,000,000 yet they can't afford anything better than a $500 depot at the principal station along the line of what is said to be the best paying branch road belonging to their system.

—The coal mines in the vicinity of Snow Shoe will be opened up more extensively than ever before this fall.

—Now, if we were only the manager of a roller rink we might make deposits at the bank daily, just like Mr. McDougal.

It Still Lives.
The Active base ball club of Philadelphia still lives. Wonder if the Association team of Bellefonte still lives? Who can tell? Who can tell?

The above somewhat impudent interrogatory is propounded by the Philadelphia Journal. Most assuredly, the "Association Team" of this place still lives, and will continue to exist when the "Active base ball club of Philadelphia" becomes a thing of antiquity. It is so full of life that on Saturday, August 23, it required the combined strength of the Mill Hall and Lock Haven nines to win a game from it. Do you know of any base ball organization that is longing to cross bats with this "Team"? If so, send it along.

—Mr. Thomas Shaughnessy received two important-looking packages in the mail the other day, and opened them with eagerness and high anticipation under the belief that some foreign relative had sent him a fortune. Imagine his chagrin and disappointment when he found nothing but Democratic free trade speeches sent to him by some individual who thought his level head could be turned by such twaddle.

The president of the Cambridge, Mass., Fire Ins. Co. says: "I recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as a building up and strengthening remedy."

—It is about certain that no depot building will be erected by the Pennsylvania company in this place this season. It will be postponed until the completion of the Bellefonte, Nittany and Lemont railroad.

The Burdock Plant is one of the best diuretics or kidney regulators in the vegetable world, and the compound known as Burdock Blood Bitters is unsurpassed in all diseases of the kidneys, liver and blood.

—Why is it that the price of milk ascends to such a dizzy height thus early in the season? The pastures are still good and the consumption of milk is not increasing.

Speer's Port Grape Wine for Weekly Persons.
This product of the grape is prescribed and used by leading physicians, when a nourishing wine is desirable; especially for females, aged persons and consumptives; and by churches for communion. Hundreds of New York physicians have visited Speer's vineyards and wine cellars, and pronounced his wine pure and unexcelled in healthful properties. It is sold by druggists.

Bellefonte Republican.

EDWARD T. TUTEN, - - Editor
 Terms, $2.00 per annum in Advance

Local Department.

-In the pretty mouth of the ice-cream girl
 There cometh a pleasing moisture
 As she whispers deep in her dearest soul,
 "September brought the oyster."

-Hurrah! 15,000 majority in Maine.
 -The Tyrone base ball nine arrived from Lock Haven on the early train Saturday morning.

-The annual picnic of the Patrons of Husbandry will be held on Nittany mountain on the 18th.

-One more enterprise to record in favor of the roller rink proprietors is the establishment of telephone connection.

-The members of the American Association for the Advancement of Science visited the Pennsylvania R. R. shops in Altoona on Saturday.

-The city school board of Williamsport has concluded to follow the example of Bellefonte in introducing steam heat into the school building.

-Mr. Francis M. Dunkle, a young man living near Hublersburg, plowed up a bumble bee's nest, and in his attempt to fight them off dislocated his right shoulder.

-The Watchman says that Recorder Bible is in North Carolina. You're just a little late, Joe; the agreeable young recorder returned home on Wednesday evening.

-The score in the base ball game between Williamsport and Lock Haven nines on Wednesday was 3 to 2 in favor of the former. This wins the $1,000 for Williamsport.

-Mr. James Crawford, flagman on the local line between Tyrone and Curwensville, was killed by being caught between two cars while in the performance of his duties on Friday.

-Lyon & Co., merchants on Allegheny street, have put electric light in their large store room and are now prepared to defy any sort of Egyptian darkness except a total eclipse of the sun.

-During the present period of dry weather the residents of even, the most prominent streets in the borough suffer much from dust, and a street sprinkler would be a desirable addition.

-The Republican Judicial Conference for this district will meet in Tyrone on Friday next. The conference from this county are Col. D. H. Hastings, James P. Coburn, Esq., and Mr. E. C. Humes.

-No, thank you; we are not going to the State fair. We see the Bellefonte fair daily and the county fair occasionally, and that is enough to satisfy the taste of the most ardent admirer of the fair sex.

-The McGahey trial which will come before the Clearfield court this week interests quite a number of Bellefonters. The indictment against McGahey is for procuring the burning of certain property in that vicinity.

-An enjoyable gathering was held at the home of P. G. Meek Thursday evening, it being in honor of Misses Mary Meek and Edith Harris, the latter expecting to depart this week for Wellesley College, Mass., and the former for a school in Bordentown, N. J.

-The Tyrone base ball nine which played in Bellefonte on Saturday played in Williamsport on Thursday, the game resulting in a score of 20 to 5 in favor of Williamsport. The club was very weak in a game with Williamsport, and it is said that the game could have been won by any score which the victors pleased.

-A birthday party occurred on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. William Miller at Boiling Spring in honor of his daughter, Miss Katie, who had reached her 17th birthday. Quite a large company assembled and the time was spent very enjoyably. Refreshments of choice cake, lemonade and grapes were served.

-A skating club has been organized the membership of which is limited to 25. It met on Friday evening to make arrangements in regard to a uniform and also to prepare for a ball to be given at the rink some time this week. The ball will be a very novel and elegant affair and those who receive invitations will be greatly favored.

-The Republicans of Stormtown will elevate a beautiful flag to the top of a high pole on Saturday evening, September the 13th. The occasion will be rendered more interesting and notable by the presence of Col. D. S. Keller, Col. D. H. Hastings, and Wilbur F. Reeder, Esq., who will each deliver appropriate speeches. Blaine and Logan are about the only candidates the people of that region hear anything about and they feel that they must indulge in a little ebullition of patriotism of this sort.

Death of Mrs. Elizabeth D. Miller.

The lady whose name is contained in the above title died at her residence on Howard street, this borough, at about 8 o'clock on Friday evening. She had been quite ill for several days, and the gradual failure of her physical health has been noticed during the past two or three years. She was a member of the Friends Society and was highly respected not only because of her upright, consistent Christian character but also because of her great age, which we believe was about 86 years. The funeral services took place on Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The life of this remarkable woman contains nothing that can form material for a lengthy obituary notice, long and honored as it has been. So simple, sweet and pure was it; so quiet and peaceful; so removed from all the distracting scenes of life as to make it unique and interesting in an unusual degree. She was born in Chester county, this State, her maiden name being Miss Elizabeth Downing. There are perhaps more people of that name than of any other in Chester county, and all are well known and honored for their upright, moral character. In the brief time given to the collection of these reminiscences we have not learned the exact date of her marriage to Isaac Miller, nor the date of their removal to Centre county, but their residence here dates back at least fifty years.

The older citizens can remember when they lived on the corner of Spring and High streets where the elegant residence of Mr. Thos. Reynolds now stands. Later still they resided in the house now occupied by Mrs. Livingston on Spring street and of late they have lived in a comfortable brick house on Howard street. Since removing to this county they spent about five years in Chester county, where Mr. Miller filled an important position and afterwards resided on a farm in the same county, but since coming the second time from Chester county their residence here has been uninterrupted by any changes.

Mr. Miller preceded his beloved wife to the eternal home about three years ago. No children of their own gathered around them, but many there are in this community who can testify that Mr. and Mrs. Miller have been like parents to them. With childlike trust, looking for no reward, they cared for the afflicted and distressed, and gave a helping hand to those who needed the assistance of an earthly friend. Like their great kind hearts, their basket and store has never failed. Casting their bread on the waters, it has returned to them after many days in the rich benedictions of those who received from them. And now that this mother in Israel has stepped across the boundary line which divides the present existence from the future many eyes will be wet with tears and many hearts will throb with sorrow sincere and real, but which is not without a Comforter.

The funeral at the deceased's late residence on Howard street Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock was very large.

A Wedding in Phillipsburg.

Our handsome young friend, Mr. Will Laurie, son of Rev. Mr. Laurie, pastor of the Presbyterian church of this place, was married in Phillipsburg on Thursday morning, and here is a part of what the Journal of that place has to say about it:

Yesterday (Thursday) morning Mr. Will Laurie, of the enterprising firm of J. M. Hale & Co., hardware merchants, and one of our most highly esteemed young gentlemen, was united in marriage to Miss Jessie, youngest daughter of Mrs. T. M. Crissman, of South Front street, and one of Phillipsburg's handsomest and most accomplished young ladies. The ceremonies were performed at eight o'clock in the M. E. Church by Rev. William Laurie, of Bellefonte, and witnessed by relatives and a few select friends of the contracting parties. The beautiful bride, arrayed in her rich wedding costume, passing gracefully down the aisle, leaning on the arm of her handsome husband, was a charming sight, and called forth the admiration of all present. After receiving the congratulations of their friends and partaking of refreshments bountifully served at the home of the bride's mother, the happy couple, accompanied by several of the party, crossed the mountain in private conveyance for Tyrone where they took the noon train east on a two-weeks' tour, contemplating visiting Philadelphia, New York, Atlantic City, Watkins' Glenn, Washington and other prominent places. We join their hosts of friends in wishing the happy couple a long and prosperous life.

Upon their return from their wedding tour we understand Mr. L. and his bride will settle down to house-keeping, occupying the handsome new residence on south Centre street just erected by Mr. C. T. Fryberger.

-On Saturday, the 20th, the people of Penn township will vote on the question of changing the polling place of that township from the public house of W. S. Musser, in Millheim, to the public house of Joseph Kleckner, in Coburn.

Effect of the Heat.

People do not seem to take a very lively interest in anything just at present, and the most disastrous catastrophe might occur without arousing even an exclamation of surprise. They feel the prostrating effects of the weather too much to allow themselves any excitement, and subjects which on ordinary occasions would attract their attention at once do not now exert any power over them. They don't care whether France or China is victorious and find themselves incapable of exerting sufficient mental effort to distinguish the war in that part of the world from Gordon's operations in Egypt. It is a most favorable time for them to learn to skate at the roller rink, because they don't care a cent whether they roll around on the skates or on their heads. With a genuine contempt for results they begin to learn and before the first half hour is over they are the best skaters in the room. When informed that Senator Anthony and Secretary Folger are dead and that Dr. Beach, of Altoona, has been found guilty of murder, they elevate their eyes with just a sufficient show of interest to evince a semi-politeness, and languidly inquire if Dr. Beach killed any other persons than Folger and Anthony. Only one subject arouses them and renders them capable of existing through the heated term. Intimate to any sensible man the possibility of Cleveland's election and he is immediately all interest and indignation. "No, sir," he says at once, "Any fate would be better than that for the country. It would have been better for the recent earthquake that have swallowed us all than to elevate such a scoundrel to the Presidency. If I thought there was any danger, I'd—"; but we left before we heard the rest of his declaration, quite confident that Blaine is solid for 1,000,000 majority.

-The laying of the corner stone of the Patton Graded school on Tuesday, September 2, in Curwensville, under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity, was quite an imposing affair. Dr. Elias W. Hale, of this place, as Grand Master, was the chief presiding officer, and of the address delivered by Rev. Hewitt, rector of St. John's Episcopal church, the County Review remarks: "The large concourse of people who had patiently stood the heat during the hour's exercises then surrounded the platform under the shade of the Methodist church to listen to an address by Rev. John Hewitt, of Bellefonte, who dwelt principally on the reasons why the Masonic fraternity should be called upon to lay the corner stone of an educational building and eloquent words for education, religion and the conspicuous circumstances which called the people together on that occasion, paying a just tribute to General Patton who has so munificently endowed the school. Rev. Hewitt's address was well delivered and well received." The same paper is our authority for the statement that "Frank P. Blair makes a fine looking Grand Marshall."

Market Notes.

Those who want squashes can buy very nice ones at market.

There were a few grapes and plums for sale Saturday morning.

Huckleberries and blackberries were almost as plentiful as ever, notwithstanding previous predictions to the contrary.

Cucumbers are marvelously cheap—a dozen for 8 cents.

Tomatoes are plentiful and cheap apples ditto.

Potatoes are brought to market in large quantities and are readily sold. Eggs and butter are just about equal to the demand.

Smear case and apple butter are among the articles offered for sale and many people are anxious to buy them.

The line of wagons reaches the entire distance in front of the Court House yard and up North and South High streets.

-The residence of Daniel McGinley on East Lamb street caught fire last Saturday morning from a defective flue, but by prompt measures the flames were extinguished before doing serious damage. The Logan Hose boys responded to the call and dragged their hose carriage to the top of the hill, but their services were not needed. It is extremely fortunate that the flames were extinguished so quickly, as the facilities for fighting fire on Bunker Hill are inadequate and the weather is so dry that a fire would rage fiercely and destroy much valuable property. The people in that section were greatly frightened until they knew that all danger was over.

-The festival held under the auspices of the Zion band on Saturday attracted the usual large number of people and was the source of much pleasure and profit.

That Big Contract.

The Phillipsburg Ledger gives the following in reference to that big contract upon which Hoover, Hughes & Co., of that place, are now working:

Messrs. Hoover, Hughes & Co., the planing mill firm of this place, have taken the contract of building the Mexican Government Exposition Building at the World's Fair, in New Orleans. The building is 200x300 feet, in the shape of a hollow square with a large inner court, with 8 towers. It will be of the Renaissance order of architecture, and will be very ornamental. It will use about 500,000 feet of lumber, principally white and yellow pine. The frame timbers will be of white pine, which will be framed and surfaced at their mill here, and made all ready to put together after its shipment. The yellow pine flooring, siding, and finish will be bought and prepared in New Orleans. The work will necessitate the labor of 150 men, who will be taken from Pittsburgh by Mr. Wm. V. Hughes who will superintend the construction. The Company have contracted to finish the building by Nov. 15. They are now running their mills night and day on the order. The building will be put up in such shape that it can be taken down and stored away without injury. We congratulate our energetic townsmen on their success in securing this contract, as a building of such an immense structure will add largely to their already widespread reputation.

-Never were there more beautiful nights than those of the week just ended. The big, round, honest moon rises in the eastern sky, and when just above the horizon appears large and crimson shining through the misty atmosphere. Ascending higher in the sky, it becomes bright and silvery and floods the earth with its brightness. What temptations there are to fall asleep in the fairy moonlight; to lie down on the damp green grass and amid Nature's beauties seek Nature's sweet restorer, sleep. Nothing but the certainty that such a course would be followed by a "cold in the head" impels the enthusiast to seek his usual downy couch and pull the covering up close and tight. It is certain that God made the summer, the flowers, the fruit and the pretty girls; and then Satan stepped in and made the winter, and the flies, and the homely girls.

-The lack of Democratic campaign material received a fresh illustration in the "Red Shirts and White Hats" local in Friday morning's Watchman. We are a member of the Young Men's Republican Club, of this place but have heard no intimation that any of the members want to wear white hats or refuse to march. It is quite evident that Joe is slightly off and should hunt for more facts regarding the circumstances to which he alludes. Joe's visit to the roller rink and the bewilderment caused by the vision of lads and lassies moving in bright panoramas before him resulted in the red shirt and white hat vision. Then a white hat would be an infringement of Mr. Meek's rights as he leads the style in that direction just now.

-A funeral took place Thursday afternoon from the residence of Mr. Herman Robb, on Bishop street. It was that of Mrs. Gates, of Renovo, whose death occurred at her home in that place on Tuesday, and whose remains were brought to this place on the Thursday morning train. Mrs. Gates was formerly Miss Jane Klepper of this borough. She was a sister of Mrs. Robb and was very highly esteemed by all who knew her. She leaves a husband and a little babe. The event is the source of the most profound sorrow to her numerous friends. To the bereaved husband and all mourning relatives we extend our sincere condolence.

-T. P. Rynder, State chairman of the Greenback party, is at his home in Milesburg. He states that the reason for changing the date of the State Convention is that General Butler's presence can more certainly be secured on the 30th inst. and also that arrangements to make the occasion a mammoth gathering can be perfected. While in Philadelphia he made arrangements with the railroads to transport any number of people who desire to come to this place on the 30th.

-According to the Watchman, $100 plus $300 equals $1300, the amount of the reward offered for the apprehension of Micky Smith, the Cambria county murderer. That first amount should be $1000 and the article would be correct. According to the same paper, there is a new publication in Phillipsburg, as "Harry Williams, of the Herald," is alluded to.

-The Episcopal church is now fitted with the necessary radiators and other appliances for furnishing steam heat.

On Monday, the 1st, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lindsey, who have been guests at the residence of E. T. Tuten, departed for their home in Houtdale, being accompanied by Miss Fannie Gray, of this place, who will visit in Houtdale a short time.

Mr. Henderson, son of the manager of the steel works in this place, visited Johnstown the other day and while there looked through the steel manufacturing department of the Cambria Iron Works. He reports that the most active industry is apparent in all departments of that great establishment. More orders are received than can be filled and such a thing as "hard times" is not thought of there.

Major H. H. Benner, on Monday the 1st, instant received a telegram from Greenville, Mercer county, Pa., informing him of the severe illness of his brother-in-law, Mr. George W. Carskaddon. Miss Linnie Benner started that morning on the 5:45 o'clock train for the home of her sister in that place, this being the second trip made by her to Greenville this summer because of the illness of Mr. C.

Personal Penellings.

Mr. Zeller returned on Saturday last from a very enjoyable visit to the sea shore.

Misses Mame Leonard and Nellie Larimer departed on Monday for Miss L's home in Davenport, Iowa. They have each figured quite prominently in social affairs in this place during the summer and will be missed.

Leonard Rhone, Esq., until recently a prominent Republican, and now candidate for Assembly on the Democratic ticket, favored Bellefonte with his presence Monday. He seems to stand the prevailing high temperature in an admirable manner and does not expect the atmosphere to become cool again until the third week of November.

Our young friend, E. I. Garman, Esq., of D. Garman & Son's store, departed Saturday morning for the large cities to buy a stock of fall and winter goods. Ed. has the very best taste and most critical judgment for choice dry goods and notions as well as pretty girls, and the result of his survey of city attractions on this occasion will prove gratifying to all patrons of his store.

Mr. Woomer, the one-armed man who sold newspapers in this place, has moved to Williamsport and is living on High street in that city. He is said to be doing well there and is pleased with the city. He writes that tenant houses and the price of many of the necessities of life are much cheaper there than in Bellefonte. This should not be so, but it is at least partially true.

A New Saw Mill.

Mr. Alexander Agar, of Lock Haven, says the Express of Wednesday, left for Snow Shoe this morning to select a suitable site for a mill to be built on the timber tract of Hopkins, Weymouth & Byers, situated about one mile and a half from Snow Shoe town. A mill now owned by the same firm and located a short distance from the proposed new site will be removed to it. The new mill will have a sawing capacity of about 60,000 feet a day and will employ about fifty men. The B. C. & S. W. and the Bald Eagle Valley railroads pass through the lands and thus afford easy transportation for the lumber. The mill will probably be started next season.

A Roller Rink in Port Matilda.

A very fine roller rink has just been started at Port Matilda in this county. It is under the control of Mr. A. W. Reese, a merchant in that place. The building is about 85 by 45 feet. It was opened on Saturday evening, August 30, and at once became very popular. All the skates that the manager has purchased are in use nightly and a new supply must at once be procured. There are only about 50 inhabitants in Port Matilda and that the rink becomes so popular in so small a place is surprising, and would seem to indicate that the business might prove a bonanza in several larger towns in the county where there are none now.

-The services in the P. E. church on Sunday evening were highly interesting. The effect was heightened by the novelty and beauty of the electric light shed from 24 ten-candle power jets, flooding the beautiful church with its brilliancy. After the offering was lifted Miss Julia Valentine sang a very fine anthem. She has a voice of great beauty and power.

-The date of the Greenback State convention has been changed from the 18th to the 30th of September.
